Rise Shows Confidence In Canadian Economy

FROM CANADIAN PRESS DISPATCHES

Around the western world today the Canadian dollar, its value for the last 11 years arbitrarily fixed at 90 cents U.S., began its climb back to parity.

At the opening of foreign exchange dealings in New York today it was quoted at between 93½ and 94½ cents in terms of U.S. currency with trading described as "erratic."

In Montreal and Toronto the quotation was between 93 and 95 cents in U.S. funds while in London the range was from 2.88 to 2.93 dollars to the pound sterling.

Before Ottawa unpegged the rate Saturday night, the London price was 3.08 dollars to the pound while in North American markets the range Friday was from 89 to 90½ cents U.S. currency.

First immediate effects of the change were felt by Canadian stocks.

In Toronto, shares of companies which have heavy sales in the United States declined today in opening trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

This was due to the fact that companies getting paid in American funds will get less money as the Canadian dollar goes up in its relation to the U.S. dollar.

Army-Navy Wipe Out 'Enemy' On Salt Spring

Reservists Join In Combined Scheme

ABOARD H.M.C.S. SAULT STE. MARIE—The first combined operation by reserve naval and army personnel on the B.C. coast has been carried out with complete success.

Combined forces of the Canadian Scottish Regiment and H.M.C.S. Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, Sunday wiped out "enemy" units which had invaded the coast to take up strong defence positions in the islands.

The C.S.R.'s "B" company, reinforced by a landing party of Malahat reservists fought through rough territory under aerial attack to drive the enemy from positions held on Salt Spring Island. An active fifth column element made up of islanders headed by Lieut.-Col. Des Crofton, added to the attackers' problems.

Guns of H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, Malahat's training and headquarters ship under the command of Lieut.-Cmdr. Allan R. Heater, hammered at enemy positions and a joint navy-army force overran the pinned-down invaders.

It was all part of "Operation Overboard," a scheme carried out after intensive planning by senior officers of the two units in an experiment designed to lay the basis of future similar operations.

Assessing the exercise on the return voyage from Salt Spring, Capt. R. Jackson, commanding officer, H.M.C.S. Malahat, and Lieut.-Col. Walter Mosedale, commanding officer, C.S.R., said:

"On the basis of the success of this operation, it is definitely indicated that future operations should be expanded.

"The value of this combined scheme was such that there can be no doubt of the desirability of including all reserve units in any future operation."

Weather Forecast

Clear, clouding over this evening. Cloudy with occasional shower Tuesday. Little change in temperature. Light winds, Low tonight, 45; high Tuesday, 58.

Clarence Wallace Takes Lieut.-Governor Office

British Columbia's new Lieutenant-Governor took office today.

Hon. Clarence Wallace took the oath of office as King's representative in the province before Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan at a morning ceremony at Government House.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace arrived in Victoria from Vancouver on the Sunday midnight boat and registered at the Empress Hotel.

They took up residence at Government House following the swearing-in ceremony.

Among those present at the ceremony were Acting Premier Herbert Anscomb and members of the provincial cabinet.

Hon. Charles A. Banks, who relinquished his position as Lieutenant-Governor before his term of office had expired, is preparing for a visit to San Francisco with Mrs. Banks after which he and his wife are expected to move to a home on Foul Bay Road.

S. Koreans Advance 30 Miles In Red Territory

TOKYO (AP)—South Korean troops drove nearly 30 miles inside Russian sponsored North Korea today. They were almost half way to the line where North Koreans were reported preparing to make a last-ditch stand at Wonsan.

Associated Press correspondent Hal Boyle reported from the front that the South Korean 3rd Division had driven close to Ansong, a coastal town 30 miles north of the parallel 38 border.

The entire South Korean 3rd Division and two regiments of the Republic's Capital Division were across the border, Boyle said. The 3rd was driving north along the coastal highway. The Capital Division was striking west from captured Yangyang, about seven miles north of the border.

An American officer with the South Koreans said Republican forces were smashing ahead against extremely light resistance.

The South Korean 3rd Division crossed the border Sunday on the east coast. The Capital Division marched over Monday in the same area.

The Reds were ignoring Gen. MacArthur's week-end order that they give up now or be destroyed.

Top-ranking United Nations commanders would not say anything about what MacArthur's headquarters called a delicate campaign—the thrust into Red territory. The crossing was reported only in field dispatches at the outset.

Red Korean prisoners said the northerners were preparing to make a stand around Wonsan, the heavily-bombed east coast port about 70 miles north of the border. This is due east of the Red capital, Pyongyang, along a line cutting North Korea at its narrowest point.

Pyongyang remained silent both on the reported crossing and on MacArthur's surrender ultimatum.

MacArthur's surrender terms were broadcast first at noon Sunday.

Miners Work Again

GLASGOW (Reuter) — About 5,800 Scottish miners today ended their six-day strike for more pay and returned to work. But 1,000 miners remained on strike, and five of 26 pits previously affected were still idle.

Vishinsky Says Facts On Korea Twisted By U.S.

LAKE SUCCESS (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky of Russia charged today that the United States has "flung a challenge at the U.N. and international law" by ignoring a four-power agreement on Korea.

Addressing the General Assembly's political committee, Vishinsky accused the U.S. chief delegate, Warren R. Austin, of a "deliberate and wilful misrepresentation of the facts" in the Korean case.

The Soviet Foreign Minister spoke during committee debate on an eight-member resolution for the unification and rehabilitation of Korea under United Nations' supervision.

Vishinsky maintained the report of the present U.N. Korean Commission showed illegal acts were carried out during the South Korean election of last May. He added that supporters of opposition parties were beaten up.

The election took place in an atmosphere of "unbridled terror" created by the police of South Korean President Syngman Rhee making free balloting impossible, Vishinsky declared.

scribing the South Korean government as "rotten," Vishinsky said the catastrophic financial situation in the country resulted from a boycott by the people against Rhee's policies.

STINGING DEFEAT

1,400 Reds Jailed For Rioting In W. Germany

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) — German police today claimed a decisive victory over Communists who Sunday attempted to start a bloody wave of riots and demonstrations in West German cities.

Police jailed more than 1,400 Red ringleaders and broke up every attempt they made to start riots in a score of cities.

The day marked for bloodshed ended with nothing more serious than scattered fist fights and stone-throwing. About 30 police were hurt in the skirmishes.

Meanwhile, the people of Russian-encircled Berlin received assurance from President Truman of continued aid to keep the city free. The President's

SOVIET MINES NEAR KOREA

WASHINGTON (BUP) — Admiral Forrest Sherman, U.S. Chief of Naval Operations, says Russian-made floating mines have been picked up in Korean waters. Sherman, in testimony before the House armed services committee, did not say who had sowed the outlawed mines.

same time he also disclosed:

1. Canadians soon will be able to take out of the country any "reasonable" amount of United States tourist dollars beyond the current limit of $150 a person yearly.

2. Emergency exchange-conservation restrictions on imports of United States consumer goods will be removed Jan. 2, 1951.

3. Possible removal of similar restrictions on U.S. capital goods. This removal to be considered by Trade Minister Howe.

4. Removal of the $3.50 cut to marginal gold miners made a year ago to offset the 9.1 per cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

5. Control will be maintained on the flow of capital in and out of the country.

Eastern Canada Has Smoke, Fog

TORONTO (CP)—Alberta forest fires remained the main cause of unusual weather in eastern Canada today.

Smoke from the series of blazes in the northern Alberta bush today mingled with the output of factories in southern Ontario and United States border cities to blanket southern Ontario and the United States middle Atlantic area with a thick fog.

Weather officials explained the fog resulted when warm, moist, tropical air came in contact with the smoke. As the air cooled off at night, smoke particles caught the condensing moisture.

Be Ready Tonight

Tonight the white light of public attention all across Canada will be focussed on Victoria.

This is Community Chest Night.

The daring and unusual experiment of trying to reach Greater Victoria area's objective of $181,293 in a whirlwind drive of a few short hours—instead of in the usual weeks—is a challenge not only to our humanitarianism, but also to our civic pride.

Since the early summer volunteer organizers have spent many hours drawing up meticulously-detailed plans for this one-night appeal.

There has been the type of real community spirit which should be rewarded in full by a complete and generous response.

The collectors who will be calling at porch-lighted homes tonight are giving their services—giving them willingly—in the interests of the handicapped, the unfortunate, the aged, and the victims of circumstances which can alter the lot of even the most thrifty.

When you are asked for your donation tonight, therefore, remember that the Community Chest symbolizes the putting of all local "begs in one ask-it."

So be ready with it please.

Admiral Grant Goes To Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant, C.B.E., D.S.O., chief of the naval staff, is scheduled to arrive early this week in Japan for a personal observation of the activities of the three Canadian destroyers operating with the United Nations naval forces in the Korean campaign, the navy said today.

Admiral Grant left by air Saturday for Washington, from where he will fly by way of San Francisco and Pearl Harbor to Japan.

Boost For Canada As Dollar, Set Free, Headed For Parity

Consumer To Benefit; Businessmen Satisfied

FROM CANADIAN PRESS DISPATCHES

Around the western world today the Canadian dollar, its value for the last 11 years arbitrarily fixed at 90 cents U.S., began its climb back to parity.

By noon in New York today it was quoted at between 94 and 94½ cents in terms of U.S. currency with trading described as "erratic."

In Montreal and Toronto the quotation was between 93 and 95 cents in U.S. funds while in London the range was from 288 to 293 dollars to the pound sterling. Before Ottawa unpegged the rate Saturday night, the London price was 3.08 dollars to the pound while in North American markets the range Friday was from 89 to 90½ cents, U.S. currency.

First immediate effects of the change were felt by Canadian stocks. In Toronto, shares of companies which have heavy sales in the United States declined today in opening trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

This was due to the fact that companies getting paid in American funds will get less money as the Canadian dollar goes up in its relation to the U.S. dollar.

Businessmen in British Columbia meanwhile generally have reacted favorably to the government's action in freeing the Canadian dollar, and restoring the subsidy for marginal gold mines.

Manufacturers are confident in their ability to hold their markets, pointing out that United States prices are still rising.

Mining industry spokesmen see benefits for small mines and prospectors in restoration of the subsidy. But big producing mines may take a loss as a result of removal of curbs on the dollar. They will receive proportionally less for their output as the dollar moves closer to parity with U.S. funds.

Canadian consumers, however, are expected to benefit from lower prices for United States manufactured goods, for meat and fish, and possibly for oil and gasoline.

Those who may suffer are residents of this country who are living on pensions from Great Britain, or recent immigrants who are depending on United Kingdom funds.

STERLING SLUMPS
Vancouver banks today were quoting the British pound at about $2.90, a sharp decrease from Friday's figure of $3.08.

One Vancouver banker said that the dollar value "is changing every few minutes, and I can't tell you what it will be worth this afternoon. At the moment we're quoting it at a discount of from 5 to 7 per cent," he added, "but that isn't firm."

In London the market in Canadian securities on the London Stock Exchange became nominal today.

Dealings were few and mainly a matter of negotiation with dealers awaiting reaction from Montreal. Prices were irregular.

But in Zurich, Switzerland, home of one of the most important money markets in Europe the dollar rose from 3.96 francs Friday night to $4.06 at Saturday closing and opened today at 4.22 Zurich bankers expected it to reach parity with the U.S. dollar within the next few days.

U.S. Believes Canada Dollar To Reach Par
By CANADIAN PRESS
Canadian officials make no predictions as to what will happen to the dollar, cast off from government control for the first time since 1939, but Washington officials say it may shoot right up to par with the U.S. dollar and then drop part way back.

Some London experts hazard the same guess of parity within a day or two, but say that the dollar may shoot higher than the U.S. dollar later in the week. That kind of thinking reflects tremendous confidence in Canada's economy.

The government's decision to set the dollar free was announced by Finance Minister Abbott Saturday night. At the same time he also disclosed:

1. Canadians soon will be able to take out of the country any "reasonable" amount of United States tourist dollars beyond the current limit of $150 a person yearly.

2. Emergency exchange-conservation restrictions on imports of United States consumer goods will be removed Jan. 2, 1951.

3. Possible removal of similar restrictions on U.S. capital goods. This removal to be considered by Trade Minister Howe.

4. Removal of the $3.50 cut to marginal gold miners made a year ago to offset the 9.1 per cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

5. Control will be maintained on the flow of capital in and out of the country.

No Rush On Banks To Sell U.S. Dollars
Activity in the city's banks was functioning normally today following the turning loose of the Canadian dollar in the open market.

Bankers were keeping their eye on the situation, however, and watching for fluctuation in quotations.

There was no great rush to sell U.S. dollars to avoid loss of the premium paid in Canadian dollars.

Rates varied in different banks, with a spread between the buying and selling prices of 2½ points. This spread, said one banker, is an indication of the uncertainty of the value. Normally the spread between the buying and selling price is one-half of 1 per cent.

LONDONERS SUFFER AS GAS OFF, BUSES HALT

LONDON. (Reuter)—Londoners today enhanced their reputation of being among the most patient people in the world. About 2,000,000 awoke again to cold breakfasts because of a gas strike which has lasted for 17 days. Gas supply was so low that it took more than 45 minutes to boil water for tea and it was impossible to toast bread.

Those who turned on electric heaters found more frustration. There were power cuts all over Britain.

Smiling bravely, if a trifle wanly, Londoners set off to work and found transport chaos awaiting them.

A new scale of increased fares on trains, buses and the subway system had come into effect and nobody was sure of anything any longer.

Result was long queues and millions late for work. But London kept on smiling. At least it wasn't raining.

Advance 35 Miles Into Soviet Korea

South Korean 3rd Division Drives Reds Fleeing To City Of Wonsan

TOKYO (UP)—The free-wheeling South Korean 3rd Division was reported today to have advanced 33 to 35 miles across the border of North Korea and to be fighting Communist rear-guard elements fleeing toward the big east coast city of Wonsan.

Ford Windsor Workers Quit

WINDSOR, Ont. (BUP)—Ford of Canada production lines stopped this afternoon when 3,000 men quit work and another 2,500 were expected to follow.

The men are protesting the slow negotiations. The walkout started just before the negotiators sat down for another conference.

Governor Calls On Johnsons

QUEBEC (CP)—Governor General Viscount Alexander today visited Premier and Mrs. Byron Johnson of British Columbia in St. Sacrement Hospital.

The Johnsons were injured Friday in an auto collision at St. Augustin, 15 miles west of here.

Visitor Helps Chest With Desk In Hotel

Visitors to Victoria who have expressed interest in Victoria's remarkable one-night Community Chest campaign have been given the opportunity to contribute.

Mrs. Stanley D. Weinberger of Los Angeles, who says she "likes Victoria and likes the people who live here," set up a desk in the Empress Hotel where both transient and permanent guests could do their part in helping this city reach its $181,000 objective.

A visitor here for several months each year, Mrs. Weinberger said many guests had mentioned the novel drive and many had said they were ready to contribute.

NATIONAL COVERAGE

Meanwhile, the drive which is attracting attention all over the continent, is assured of national coverage in the United States and Canada.

A photographer for a leading picture-news magazine is here to cover the porchlight parade, which gets under way at 7 tonight.

Eastern Canadian papers and magazines are also reported to be assembling stories about the "Give Where You Live" scheme. Chest officials—these men and women who have been giving their time, day and night, for several weeks—expressed confidence that Victoria will put itself "on the map" by attaining the objective.

Wonsan is approximately 100 miles above the 38th parallel and is regarded as the key to all North Korean communications from the east coast. It is the biggest North Korean city on the coast.

The 3rd Division—one of two South Korean divisions across the line—was rolling northward as fast as its trucks could carry it.

The division was under blanket orders to go as far and as fast as it could, traveling by day over the same roads the Communists traveled by night.

At the opposite end of the front, U.S. Marines still were running into stout Communist resistance below Unijongbu, 18 miles south of the 38th parallel.

At 4 p.m. the Marines had only about a 300-yard advance to show for the day's fighting. However, they were playing it safe, depending on artillery and planes to break up the Communist rear-guard stand.

A small band of Reds attacked on the eastern outskirts of Seoul at 10 p.m. Sunday, but South Koreans killed two and took 57 prisoners.

A 7th Division patrol engaged a small group of Reds attempting to cross the Han River this morning.

Thirteen miles to the west, the 5th Marine regiment advancing up the main Seoul-Pyongyang highway sent patrols into Mun-san, 10 miles south of the 38th parallel.

The Communists still had not replied to Gen. MacArthur's broadcast surrender demands.

As the South Koreans swept deeper into Communist territory, U.S. commanders were taking care that the northward advance gave no opportunity for incidents involving Communist China.

Mission Youth Of 16 Charged With Killing Schoolgirl, 13

MISSION, B.C. (CP)—A 16-year-old Mission youth today was charged with the murder of 13-year-old Laura Grant, victim of a sex-slayer last Friday.

The youth was taken into custody late Sunday following a 48-hour investigation by R.C.M.P. officers. He was arrested at his home here.

The nude body of Laura, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Grant, district farmers, was found in an isolated, brush-covered lane. Death was caused by strangulation.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR WALLACE TAKES OATH

Air Of Informality As New Governor Sworn In

There was an air of informality at Government House today when the doors of the Rockland Avenue mansion were opened to a new lieutenant-governor.

Despite the top-hat morning attire of the guests at the swearing into office of the Hon. Clarence Wallace, and the dignity accompanying such a ceremony, there was a feeling of gaiety in the drawing-room of the mansion when the oaths of office were administered.

A few pieces of luggage on the steps of the home, draped carelessly with a hurriedly thrown topcoat, added to the free and easy impression gathered.

Bright sunshine, glanced through the high-draped windows of the drawing-room as a few guests grouped about to hear the 57-year-old Vancouver shipbuilder swear allegiance to King George VI and take the oath of office as his representative in B.C.

Mrs. Wallace and three sons were proud witnesses of the event. Two of the sons, Richard and David, stood with their wives. The third son, Philip, is unmarried.

Mr. Wallace's younger brother, Hubert, and his wife also were present.

Among the outside guests were Acting Premier Herbert Anscomb and Mrs. Anscomb, six other members of the provincial cabinet and their wives, nine honorary aides-de-camp, a Senator, a member of Parliament and an old friend of the Wallace family, Mrs. Chris Johnson of Victoria.

After taking the two oaths of office, the Lieutenant-Governor—the 18th the province has had—was handed the seal of office by Deputy Provincial Secretary R. A. Pennington. His Honor then handed the seal "for safe keeping" to Provincial Secretary W. T. Straith.

Administering the oaths of office was Chief Justice Gordon McG. Sloan.

The non-governmental members of the new board, representing the main geographical regions of Canada, are:

Dr. A. W. Trueman of Fredericton, president of the University of New Brunswick; Gratien Gellinas of Montreal, actor and playwright widely known by his stage name "Fridolin"; Charles S. Band, Toronto industrialist; Mrs. A. L. Caldwell of Saskatoon, vice-president of the National Council of Women and only woman member of the senate of the University of Saskatchewan; and Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times.

Right On The Job

Within an hour after he arrived in town today, Roger Leger, coach of the Victoria Cougars in the 1950-51 Pacific Coast Hockey League race, was putting his new charges through their first workout at the Memorial Arena today.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

COMMUNISTIC WASPS

I DON'T KNOW whether I was unusually alert to the activities of the insect world after my recent flights of fancy over the intelligence of a bee, but when I went up the garden the other day to see how the last very late plums were ripening, I found that some communistic wasps had moved in and taken over our fruit.

And I dub them communistic on the strength of the definition laid down as long ago as the 17th century, long before Marx and Stalin first saw the red light, when a certain Ebenezer Elliott produced this epigram:

"What is a Communist? One who hath yearnings for the equal division of unequal earnings."

REAL COMMUNIST

AND ANY REALIST will agree that the wasp certainly has yearnings for the fruits of our hard work. We found that out this summer when long lovely days and soft, balmy evenings kept us out in the garden for leisurely lazing, and tempted us to take alfresco meals in the privacy of our own demesne.

Just when you were about to pop a sandwich or a piece of cake into your mouth, you would find a "yellow-jacket" disputing your right to it. If you dared to take issue with the winged intruder, he immediately turned nasty and, if you didn't get there first by annihilating him, would buzz-bomb you with deadly intent.

SCORES OF SPECIES

TO ME, THERE have only been two kinds of wasps—wasps and hornets—and both equally unpopular. So it was with considerable astonishment that I came across, quite casually, an article in Public Opinion stating that Britain has about 500 species of the little brutes. It didn't say anything about the Canadian varieties, but I wouldn't doubt that there are at least 57 of them in this country.

And the writer of that article, John Phillimore, revealed some surprising things he had found out by wasp-watching—a queer hobby which I have not the slightest intention of taking up. To me the only good wasp is a dead one—and they don't need watching.

VESPA VULGARIS

HE TELLS US that the commonest wasp is Vespa Vulgaris—and that it is an exponent of communism, not only in its liking for the biggest share of your and my cake and fruit, but in its social habits, too.

They share a communal life in their exquisitely-made nests which are hung in a tree, or under the eave of a house, or anywhere that catches the eye of Vespa, the nest-maker, as a suitable location, near the free food markets. (And don't I know it!) There they live in swarms, with their queen surrounded by a host of workers, plus a collection of drones and their girl friends, and there they thrive.

MOTLEY CREW

SO MUCH FOR Vespa Vulgaris. But the other species are a motley crew, according to the British wasp-watcher. They have not yet mastered the art of living sociably together, but are the outcasts, pariahs of the wasp family, so live a more or less nomad existence.

Here and there, some have been trying to get ahead a bit, to keep up with the Vespa Vulgaris Joneses, so to speak. And to that end they have just started communal encampments, instead of living in holes in sandy cliffs. But they haven't yet attained the Vespa Vulgaris social strata. For instance, they have no queens, nor are there swarms of strictly unionized workers to see that there is a fair division of labor. Yet they multiply exceedingly, says Mr. Phillimore.

NEIGHBORLY?

IN THE MEANTIME, while undergoing the process of social evolution into the completely Communist way of life, when, I suppose, they will take over all gardens, they bore their little pits near each other and pop in and out of each other's holes, probably borrowing bits of dead ant or decayed fruit, in the same way that some human neighbors borrow the odd egg or garden fork.

As, despite their neighborly attentions to us, we haven't succeeded in tracing our particular wasp tenants to their particular lairs, I don't know whether ours belong to the Vespa Vulgaris crowd or whether they are merely common or garden—in other words plain vulgar—wasps. And I don't particularly care. As I said before, to me there is only one kind of wasp with social appeal and that's a dead one—the deader the better.

Gregory Installed Head Of Gyro By Club Governor

George Gregory, young city lawyer, was installed as president of Victoria Gyro Club at the 30th annual ceremony and banquet held Saturday night at Colwood Golf and Country Club. Installing officer was Jack Higginbotham, district governor, from New Westminster.

Others taking office were James S. Cameron, vice-president; W. C. Hudson, secretary; J. Fallden, treasurer; John Nation, Don Woodhouse, James Glassford, Harold Brown, Wilfrid Fraser and George Morgan. R. V. Hocking is past president. District officers attending were G. F. Fickes, Vancouver, Wash., lieutenant-governor, and Victor Brackett, New Westminster treasurer. Clubs from Vancouver Island and the mainland also were represented.

Man, Boy Injured In Costly City Accidents

A three-year-old boy and a man were injured and nearly $1,200 damage was done in weekend accidents on city streets.

Ronald Mein, 1143 Lyle Street, suffered an injured right leg when he ran into the side of a car driven by Mrs. H. Woolridge, 1700 Bank Street, on Bank Street Sunday afternoon, police said.

He was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital by officers and is being X-rayed today.

About $150 damage was done to cars driven by Wilfred Burrey, 2326 Estevan Avenue, and Ernest Lager, 841 Bay Street, Sunday night at Cook and Fort Streets, police said.

A parked car owned by Herbert Wilkinson, 303 Niagara Street, suffered $125 damage when it was struck by a car being backed out from a driveway by W. E. Turner, 3000 Quadra Street, at that address, Saturday night, police said.

One driver is to be charged with drunken driving as a result of a collision at Caledonia Avenue and Douglas Street Saturday night. Damage was estimated at $275.

CUT OVER EYE

Walter Cross, 720 Selkirk Street, was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a severe cut over the left eye after a collision at Langford and Catherine Streets. Police said a car driven by George P. Sinnott, 327 Gorge Road, first was in collision with one driven by Dr. J. W. Lennox, 1216 Rockland Avenue, and then with the Cross car, with which nearly $300 damage was done.

In a Saturday collision on Government Street, $150 damage was done when a car driven by E. W. Brown, 507 Simcoe Street, was in collision with a parked car owned by Lewis W. Green, 2229 Government.

Damage was done to cars owned by George E. H. Morton, 293 Hillside Avenue, and Harold D. Smith, 788 Hillside on Saturday. Police said the Smith car was parked.

Civil Servants' Group Official To Visit City

Fred Knowles, national secretary of the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, will visit Victoria Wednesday and will attend the monthly meeting of the Victoria branch held in the Naval Veterans' Branch, Canadian Legion, 1417 Broad Street, at 8 in the evening.

He will discuss the A.C.S.C. campaign for increased salaries. President of the local council, A. E. Pendray, asked for a full attendance.

After visiting here Mr. Knowles will proceed to New Westminster to preside over the B.C. district conference Oct. 7. Mr. Pendray will be the Victoria delegate to that conference.

One-Night Stand For Chest Drive

Porch Light Parade Starts At 7 In Effort To Raise $181,000

This is D-day for the Community Chest.

At 7 tonight, when whistles, sirens and horns sound, it will be the signal for citizens to turn on their porch lights and show the rest of this continent that the spirit of helping the other fellow glows brightly in Victoria.

Columbia Coast Mission Boats' Service Grows

The Columbia Coast Mission continues to carry out its work in the waters of B.C., bringing spiritual and physical aid to isolated points along the coast.

In the organization's annual report issued by Rev. Allan Greene, mission superintendent, statistics show the four vessels, the Columbia, the John M. Antle, the Rendevous and the Gwa-Yee traveled a total of 26,276 miles, and the ministers conducted 552 church services, 140 baptisms, 13 marriages and 14 burials.

The Columbia, based at Alert Bay, is a combination mission and hospital ship. Her crew consists of George A. MacDonald, master; William J. McTavish, doctor; Rev. Heber Greene, chaplain; Robert F. McCrea, engineer, and Donald T. Scott, cook.

The John M. Antle, with headquarters at Garden Bay, is commanded by Rev. Allan Greene; the Rendevous works out of Whaletown under Rev. Rolo M. Boas, and the Gwa-Yee from Kingcome Inlet under Ernest W. Christmas.

The Columbia Coast Mission is a frontier missionary enterprise of the Church of England in Canada.

Sidney Firemen Plan Campaign For $4,100

In order to raise $4,100 for building and equipment, Sidney Volunteer Fire Department will hold a drive for funds during National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 8 to 14, Chief G. A. Gardner has announced.

A total of $2,500 is needed for floors, fittings and doors in the new building, and $1,600 for 800 feet of new hose. The department answered 73 alarms between Jan. 1 and Sept. 15, Cmdr. F. B. Leigh, secretary-treasurer, announced, of which 70 were controlled.

DRIVE BACKED BY COLWOOD

Colwood Community Club will support the Community Chest with a "lights on" meeting at the Community Hall tonight at 8, when Community Chest funds will be collected.

Because of the scattered population the meeting takes the place of a canvass.

Trawler Released

LONDON (Reuter)—The British trawler Swanella, arrested by a Russian ship in the White Sea off Murmansk last week, has been released, a Foreign Office spokesman said today. He said the trawler reported by radio she was fishing again. No reply has been received from Russia to a British note last week asking for release of the trawler and reasons for its arrest.

'Enemy' Wiped Out In First Combined Operation Of Reserve Navy And Army Ever Carried Out On B.C. Coast

Combined reserve naval and army party prepares to put ashore in "Operation Overboard" first sea-land reserve scheme ever carried out on the B.C. coast. This unit was one which drove off "enemy" forces on Salt Spring Island.

Pinned down by "enemy" fire, two naval cadets in H.M.C.S. Malahat's landing party, hug ground waiting for chance to

Reservists Join In Combined Scheme

ABOARD H.M.C.S. SAULT STE. MARIE—The first combined operation by reserve naval and army personnel on the B.C. coast has been carried out with complete success. Combined forces of the Canadian Scottish Regiment and H.M.C.S. Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, Sunday wiped out "enemy" units which had invaded the coast to take up strong defence positions in the islands.

The C.S.R.'s "B" company, reinforced by a landing party of Malahat reservists fought through rough territory under aerial attack to drive the enemy from positions held on Salt Spring Island.

Guns of H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie, Malahat's training and headquarters ship under the command of Lieut.-Cmdr. Allan R. Heater, hammered at enemy positions and a joint navy-army force overran the pinned-down invaders.

INTENSIVE PLANNING

It was all part of "Operation Overboard," a scheme carried out after intensive planning by senior officers of the two units in an experiment designed to lay the basis of future similar operations.

In planning the exercise, the attackers set for themselves the following problem: "Without warning, enemy forces have made landings from special troops—carrying submarines on islands south of Alaska, the Queen Charlotte and the northwestern coast of Vancouver Island.

"Owing to the element of surprise and their regard for security, the enemy forces have the initiative and are now advancing down the east coast of Vancouver Island and from island to island in the Gulf of Georgia where there is scattered resistance and no organized force to oppose them.

"It is anticipated that by this method of approach, they will soon be attacking Salt Spring Island in preparation for an all-out drive down the Saanich Peninsula to capture the Patricia Bay airport and then Victoria.

"Having captured the airport, they could bring in their aircraft which could then operate against shipping in the straits.

"These operations could virtually seal the ports of Vancouver and Seattle to unarmed ships. R.C.N. AT SEA

"There is at present very little in the way of close support. The heavier fighting elements of the R.C.N. are at sea as anti-submarine patrol of the west coast of Vancouver Island. The R.C.A.F. is committed to reconnaissance and protection of vital communication centres against attacks.

With this the situation, "B" company of the Scottish theoretically withdrew from the Sidney area, while the Seaforth's protected a line along the Island Highway with elements at Cowichan Bay and headquarters at Langford Lake.

The 75th Heavy Anti-Aircraft Artillery was in strategic posts in Victoria and at Patricia Bay Airport, while the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade was manning the forts.

At the Bay Street Armory, the C.S.R.'s regrouped and then went to H.M.C.S. Dockyard to board H.M.C.S. Sault Ste. Marie for their assault on enemy positions on Salt Spring Island.

Arriving at the island Saturday evening, Sault Ste. Marie came under unexpected aerial attack organized by the fifth column formed among residents of the island and headed by Lt. Col. Desmond Crofton, one of the wartime commanders of the attacking C.S.R.'s.

SHIP BOMBED

With Lt. Col. Crofton as bombardier in the attacking plane, several direct hits were scored. Fortunately for the ship the bombs were made up of lime in brown bags. But, for the purpose of scoring, the ship was badly hit. The first hit was on the port side of the wheelhouse, blasting through and "killing" and "injuring" the men on duty there. The second hit was immediately forward of the funnel, while two others smashed into the quarterdeck. However, as, technically speaking, hostilities were not supposed to begin until 1 Sunday morning, Sault Ste. Marie got away scot-free.

After reaching Ganges, the ship disembarked reserve army personnel who set up camp near Harbor House and guards were posted at strategic road points.

Shortly after arrival of the ship, saboteurs became active and the ship's hull was liberally done over with white paint.

Finally all was secured and attackers and enemy remained quiet until shortly after dawn when real offensive began. Scottish units advanced on enemy positions, but shortly called for naval reinforcements which were sent ashore under command of Sub. Lt. W. Taylor, with Sub. Lt. D. Learoyd and M. Powell as section leaders, and CPO. W. C. Burch as the chief petty officer in charge.

Joining with army units, the naval force formed the left flank which advanced through a densely wooded area to a position already heavily bombed by enemy aircraft.

Umpires later had little fault to find with the way the attacking forces had handled themselves. Half of them green troops, they had assaulted the enemy area with all the spirit of seasoned soldiers. On the left flank, the naval unit took its full share of the enemy fire, but despite "casualties" the force continued its advance and wiped out the enemy posts.

STINGING DEFEAT

1,400 Reds Jailed For Rioting In W. Germany

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP) — German police today claimed a decisive victory over Communists who Sunday attempted to start a bloody wave of riots and demonstrations in West German cities. Police jailed more than 1,400 Red ringleaders and broke up every attempt they made to start riots in a score of cities.

The day marked for bloodshed ended with nothing more serious than scattered fist fights and stone-throwing. About 30 police were hurt in the skirmishes.

Meanwhile, the people of Russian-encircled Berlin received assurance from President Truman of continued aid to keep the city free. The President's message was delivered Sunday by Paul G. Hoffman, retiring chief of the Economic Co-operation Administration, in a speech at the opening of the German Industrial Fair in Berlin.

Vishinsky Fights Plans In U.N. For Korea After War

LAGE SUCCESS (AP) — Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky charged today the eight-country U.N. resolution on Korea constituted "direct aggression" against the people of that country and was designed to cast a mantle of legality on U.S. intervention there.

In a policy speech before the U.N. Assembly's political committee, the Soviet foreign minister promised to put in a resolution of his own to counter the measure under debate. He said the eight-member proposal, was designed to perpetuate the occupation of all of Korea by foreign forces.

Vishinsky explained his proposal would call for halting of American bombings. This same proposal has been beaten down in the Security Council. He said a companion Soviet proposal calling for the disbandment of the present U.N. commission in Korea also would be presented because that commission "acted unobjectively" and failed to carry out its mission.

The American-supported proposal which Vishinsky attacked calls for United Nations aid and supervision of the pacification, unification and rehabilitation of the whole of Korea.

Referring to U.S. delegate Warren R. Austin's statement Saturday that the 38th Parallel is an imaginary line, Vishinsky declared: "If that is so, there is no such things as two states."

Available For The Main Test

THE SUGGESTION OF PRIME MINISTER LOUIS ST. LAURENT on Saturday that Canada's special military force would be available for garrison service in Europe if needed shows a recognition of the new United Nations attitude toward world affairs.

The outbreak of the Korean war gave a needed impetus to plans to provide the global organization with a police force which could carry out U.N. orders. Now, while the Dominion's quickly recruited brigade may not see service in the theatre to which it was originally destined, it may be one of the first units offered for duty in the projected international army. Such a change of plans, of course, would require Parliamentary approval, as promised by the Government. But the people of this country are sufficiently alive to the trend of current developments to appreciate the need for adequate deterrent power in Europe.

History books are replete with such references as: The Kaiser would not have moved had he known the Allies would oppose him; Hitler would not have taken this step if Allied intentions to resist had been more in evidence; and so on. If a show of united strength will stop aggressors from embarking on war, then let us by all means show that strength. It will be much cheaper in the long run than having to use it.

Working To Advance Education

EXCEPT BY THOSE PEOPLE WHO have direct professional connections with the Canadian Education Association, the work of that body is not well known by the people of this Dominion. The association is composed of provincial ministers and deputy ministers of education and administrative officials of the various departments. During the year they undertake intensive study of various matters of direct concern to the schools.

One result of their work has been the co-ordination of courses in a way which makes it far easier for students from classrooms in one part of Canada to adjust themselves in equivalent grades when families move to other sections of the country. A measure of valuable uniformity is established through the interchange of ideas.

At the convention which opened here today, delegates will deal with subjects of a non-political nature which aim at the improvement of educational practice throughout Canada. Papers will be heard, for instance, on recruitment of teachers in the different provinces and will be accompanied by suggestions of methods by which the most suitable material may be drawn into that profession.

Group conferences and general sessions do not aim at the spectacular. Theirs is the task of gradual but steady progress toward a better training for the children of Canada through the schools. It is a constructive convention which Victoria is now welcoming, and one which deserves the good wishes of all our citizens.

Similar sentiments may be expressed relative to the B.C. School Trustees' Association convention which will follow it in the latter half of the week. Both, though entirely different natures, are concerned with the building of a stronger and better informed Canadian public.

Come To Victoria By All Means

THERE IS A STRONG POSSIBILITY that the next session of the constitutional conference, adjourned the other day in Quebec City, will take place in Victoria. And why not? Here on this Pacific Coast, where our people bask in the sunshine and play golf all the year round (almost) is a delightful spot in which to evolve a formula that will fit the spirit and intent of the famous 1926 Resolution and the Statute of Westminster. Clear skies, a little breeze occasionally, and no fog combine to serve up an atmosphere calculated to make for clear thinking.

Clear thinking and a recognition of changing times and customs, of course, produced the Dominion of Canada as an influential political entity in 1867. Admittedly, a good deal of colonial-minded folk in those seemingly far-off days treated themselves to doubtful shaking of heads; some well-meaning citizens in the land emerging from their swaddling clothes looked down their noses and wondered whether or not they were traitors to the so-called imperial connection. But they soon got over it. Eventually they were persuaded that the looser the bonds of empire remained the tighter the family tie would become. Two world wars proved the soundness of this concept of the modern commonwealth.

So, in the national sense, Premier Johnson's invitation to the heads of provincial governments and federal spokesmen to continue their deliberations in Victoria is an excellent idea. Executives from the Maritimes, from Quebec, from the central and mid-western sections of the country would find something stimulating out here. They may be assured of a warm welcome. We hope they come out and see us.

They're Not Burned Out At 45

AS CANADIANS LOOK CHEERFULLY at the prospects of high employment in the Dominion during the remainder of the year—a forecast made recently by Labor Minister Gregg—Victorians may note with more than passing interest the remarks of an Employment Bureau official here relative to the record of older workers.

After he had shown a film on the subject to a local service club, Harry Smith presented arguments to reduce the prejudice of some employers against engaging men over 45. Statistics showed, Mr. Smith said, that employable men in that category were more reliable and more stable, were involved in fewer accidents, were subject to less absenteeism and were more productive than their juniors. The speaker added point to his discussion by noting that a tendency on the part of some firms to decline employment to the older group automatically placed a heavier burden on the younger worker, since the seniors had to be, and deserved to be, supported.

With indications of high employment presented by Mr. Gregg, the problem of older workers should not be acute in the months ahead. The points raised by Mr. Smith, on the other hand, should be kept in mind for reference when work opportunities are not so easily available. Employers impressed by the catchphrase, "too old at 45," moreover, might profit from measuring their own capabilities and their own ages against the deadline some suggest for employees.

Keeping Our Defences Strong Still Best Hope For Freedom

By JOSEPH LISTER RUTLEDGE

WE DO not know whence come the funds for the column-long advertisements that appeared daily in newspapers on the authority of the Toronto Peace Council. We do not dispute the right of the council to advertise its appeal. We do not dispute the possible good intent of some of its members. But we do grow tired of the Men of God who have lost so much confidence that they do not ask His Guidance but assert their own.

SEEMS INNOCENT
The council's petition seems innocent enough. It calls for the banning of atomic weapons. There would be less disagreement with this idea if it were possible to make such a ban effective. How can that be, short of war?

We can legislate that dynamiting a safe is illegal. All right-thinking men are opposed to it. We have so legislated, but we haven't stopped safe-cracking. We have only been able, sometimes, to punish the offender after the offence.

Today we are faced with an outlaw creed that assumes that opportunity is law. We know the holders of that creed share with us the knowledge of atomic weapons. We do not think we are being one-sided in urging that if there is a sense of moral responsibility remaining in the world it exists more with us than it does under communism.

Every manifestation of a will to restore a world, to give it more freedom, more benefits and safeguards comes from the democratic peoples.

Communism knows well it can have no war without itself being the aggressor. But must we, at the urging of befuddled humanitarians, hand our most potent weapon to the gangster among the nations?

The potential horror of atomic war is a powerful argument, but not the only one. Years ago, Admiral Mahan, the great authority of the United States Navy, enunciated a principle of war that is powerfully applicable. It was the theory of "the fleet in being."

That was, that the mere existence of a fleet, in a given locality and without a blow being struck, automatically immobilized at least as large an enemy fleet.

BEST HOPE

All men of good will must hope that the atomic weapon will never again be used. But we know very well that our best hope, our best security is to keep our weapons bright. To do what the Rev. James G. Endicott urges, speaking both for the Toronto Peace Council and the Canadian Peace Congress, is to arm our enemy twice, by disarming ourselves. They would leave us only the melancholy satisfaction of branding as "war criminal" the power that had defeated and destroyed us.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

AFTER an absence of ten years' this column is back where it started, having learned nothing in its exile. If it is no better, Victoria has been improved beyond recognition. No modern Victorian will agree with such a wrongheaded opinion but a few ancient spirits will forgive me for saying that Victoria—that is, for us Early Victorians—has been vastly improved for the worse. I, on the other hand, have been chastened for the better, polished by the grindstone of the world into a smooth saintliness which leaves me quite unfitted for this rough business.

LET it be understood, however, that in distant countries like Canada, among the barbarous aborigines of the east, I have stoutly defended Victoria against its libelers. I have denounced everywhere the legend that Victoria is a little bit of England on the shores of the Pacific, whose inhabitants live on tea, golf and daffodils. I have loyally protested that Victoria is a modern North American city. On my return I find to my amazement that what I have been saying is true. That shakes a man.

Still, I can remember a Victoria not unlike its reputation. I can remember when Victoria lacked even the rudimentary advantages of civilization, when you could navigate past the Fountain on Douglas Street, before it was modernized, without radar or even a compass, when you could park a car without paying tribute to a parking meter—indeed, when you could actually park a car.

NOW, thanks to the new enlightenment, a Victorian can be metered, herded by the flashing tyranny of traffic lights, ticketed, fined and regimented as efficiently as the citizen of the largest metropolis. We shall soon claim equality with New York, the world's fastest city, where traffic moves up town at an average rate of 12 miles an hour and across town at seven and where, according to Collier's Magazine, it takes ten months to have a baby. Progress, it's wonderful.

I AM not an old man. I scarcely feel a day over a hundred, but I can remember our Parliament Buildings when they had not yet housed the most expensive Government in the history of Canada and it didn't cost the taxpayer twice as much to live in British Columbia as elsewhere. (That, of course, was before Herb Anscomb began his famous program of economy with the slogan: "Cut to the bone and then scrape the bone.")

I can remember when the Young Conservatives in their innocence had never heard of brewing directorates, when the present admirable brewing monopoly had not been invented by a group of enlightened free enterprisers and the Brown Jug Saloon spilled its spicy scents and its customers impartially across the wooden sidewalk.

MODERN Victorians, recent arrivals who have been here only 30 years or so, have never heard of the strong liquors of the Brown Jug. Civic debate, instead, is riveted on the pure, untinted liquid which trickles softly through the roof of the Arena. Victoria is purer now-a-days, and leakier.

Nay, I find that most Victorians have never heard that, when it built the public convenience behind the City Hall, the City Council, in a brief, wild moment of romantic inspiration, christened it Fiddler's Green, a haunting and lovely name now lost. I have looked in vain for the ghost of the fiddler who used to fiddle there on moonlight nights. He has been driven off by progress. There are other ghosts who walk the streets with us Early Victorians but in the name of progress we keep them to ourselves.

ANOTHER thing I notice in my dotage is that, beside me, everyone suddenly looks too young.

The policemen ten years ago were all men of mature years. Now they are in their teens. No wonder we have fish-pole burglars and the other amenities of a modern city when the law is in the control of pink-faced boys.

The city fathers, once venerable men, appear dangerously adolescent. It scares me to think that municipal government is in the hands of a youth like Percy George. They tell me that Harold Diggon actually has been Acting Mayor when one look at his face will show you that he isn't old enough to vote yet. There should be an investigation into this conspiracy of youth to stop minors getting themselves illegally elected to office.

NEVER mind. The seagulls still wheel against the sky, the clean winds come off the ocean, the ships whistle in the night, the flowers surge up and, though its surface has changed, the original substance of Victoria is anchored immovable in its island rock, a speck of sanity in a mad world, or vice versa. And after these first dazed ramblings of my return I promise to write nothing here that is not progressive, tender and true.

Quoting

Social security insurance will become the major method of providing protection against the economic hazards of old age.—Walter F. George (D., Ga.), chairman of U.S. Senate finance committee.

Universal military training is an essential element of an integrated and balanced system of national security.—Louis Johnson, former defence secretary.

The first nation to use the atomic bomb will bring down on her head hatred of hundreds of millions for a hundred years to come.—Henry A. Wallace, former vice president of U.S.

Put That In Your Pipe And Smoke It!

As Our Readers See It

ALL WORK, NO PLAY?

It's a pity the students of Esquimalt High School have nothing better to do than to dress up and waste their time and their teacher's too. When I went to school any such nonsense would have been treated the way it should be. There's too much of this sort of thing nowadays. If they won't go to school to study they should be put to work.

TAXPAYER.

IT HAS TAKEN A POUNDING

Let's hope the fall of the Arena clock won't start another controversy. The building has been kicked around so much, has received so many knocks, that it's a wonder even the walls are standing up. Would it be fair to remark that a few months ago the whole upper floor of a commercial concern caved in, with extensive damage to new cars. That was a one-day news story. The Arena is, of course, public business, and its flaws are open to discussion. But on certain subjects—provided public safety is guaranteed—should it be given so very much more publicity than was given to the private firm?

BYSTANDER.

FOR A CLEAR VIEW

As a long-time resident of this city I am very interested to see the revival of proposals to put electric wiring underground. I can't think of any single project that would improve Victoria as much as getting rid of the unsightly wires and poles that mar the streets and obstruct sidewalk and road traffic. No body these days would suffer a house that had masses of wiring in sight on the walls. It should be the same way with a city, especially a city that makes a point of being attractive to visitors. What an advertisement that would make! To be known as the holiday city that had no overhead wires! Of course, there's no doubt that the operation would be expensive. But is there any doubt that it would be worth it?

WIRELESS.

APPROVES STAND

I have followed with much interest the controversy between the two groups of young Conservatives in Victoria and Vancouver and can only offer my commendation to those young men and women who stood up in protest against Mr. Bewley, the B.C. President of the Young Conservatives, and his associates' "bargaining and misrepresentation of facts" and condemnation of the provincial leader, Mr. Anscomb.

With such radical elements in the association—trying to undermine and spread malicious falsehoods—we would do well to start at home to curtail their activities before they become too powerful.

Those young men and women are worthy citizens when they rebel against such tactics as adopted by Mr. Bewley in his desperate efforts to besmear the Minister of the Crown—so that he may assist Mr. Bennett in his bid for party leadership.

Young Conservatives take heed—get rid of such unworthy executives.

They Gave A Helping Hand

By A. K. ASTBURY, from London

A PARTY of Canadian students, nine men and one woman, have been having an unusual holiday in Britain, doing social work in the East End of London. They were brought over by the Rev. P. B. Clayton of All Hallows-by-the-Tower Church, London (better known as "Tubby" Clayton, the founder of Toc H) and have been spending their summer vacation looking after boys and girls living in such districts as Limehouse, Poplar, Stepney and Wapping.

'QUITE SOMETHING'

As I write, many of the children, members of clubs and "settlements" as we call them, have gone off camping, and the Canadians with them. To Walmer, on the south-east coast, have gone boys from Bow; and I was recently shown a letter from their Canadian student leader. In his innocence and enthusiasm he took his "kids" to the popular seaside resort of Margate on August Bank Holiday. And this experience, he wrote, was "quite something."

He later organized a sports day at the camp, after having to paint the running track twice because of rain. There was a large number of entries on the day, and prizes in the form of shilling, sixpenny and threepenny vouchers to be changed at the camp canteen were eagerly sought after.

Many of the students are keen sportsmen and, helped with a gift of 100 dollars worth of sports equipment from the students' council of McGill University soon started teaching the lads baseball, which they now play keenly against each other.

The woman student helped in a health centre and a nursery, while one or two of the other students helped individual churches; two of them, among other duties, cleaned the inside of the church of St. Matthew and St. John, Limehouse. The original church was badly bombed and a temporary church has been put up inside the ruins. Inside what had once been the chancel of the ruined church the students made a little garden and, when their work was finished, were given cricket lessons by newly-made friends. The wicket, I noticed, was made of a pile of loose bricks taken from the ruins.

CAMPING OUT

I haven't yet had a chance of seeing any of these young Canadians for most of them are out of London, some as far away as Ludlow, in Shropshire, camping out with their young charges. And towards the end of their time here they, and a number of Americans also doing social work in Britain, are spending a short holiday in General Eisenhower's flat in Culzean Castle, Scotland. The flat, you may remember, was given to him at the end of the war by the Scottish National Trust.

ARMS CEILING LIFTED

Winnipeg Free Press

It is good news for both countries that the United States has decided to lift the ceiling on its $25 millions arms reciprocity program with Canada. As reported by The Canadian Press from Ottawa, the ceiling is in effect entirely removed and the way opened for unlimited arms purchases by the United States in Canada. The U.S. dollars thereby earned by Canada will permit this country, in turn, to buy the defence materials which it cannot economically manufacture itself, in the United States.

Travel Diary

Another in a series of articles by
I. NORMAN SMITH
Associate Editor of The Ottawa Journal

ROME—First impressions are notoriously bad. But, in a B.G.A.C. Constellation we flew today from London across the Channel, a few countries, some mountain ranges and a bit of sea and landed at Rome just three hours and 10 minutes later. Then the Italians took over! They have so much, too much, labor here that one man isn't supposed to do a job if 10 can fiddle with it. The Rome airport is something to behold. Incoming and outgoing passengers mingle in noisy confusion: porters assume the voice of authority and mere managers, Smith ticket clerks and passport officers huddle together in timid flocks and at the height of any crisis retire for a smoke. When every suitcase has been put in the wrong section and nobody has an inkling of where his passport has been taken or by whom, there is a flank attack from a side door of bus drivers who insist upon everyone embarking at once and if the officials don't like it they'll take them too!

NOISY ARGUMENT

The ensuing argument between porters, officials, busmen and travelers is noisy, colorful and Italian. The busmen solve it by saying all right they'll go to lunch, during which we sit in a crowded bus once we have personally rescued one suitcase from the batch heading for Cairo and won a gesticulating argument with the health officer who wanted to fumigate my passport for five days.

The Italian passengers sit in the bus quiet as mice. The really eternal part of Rome is patience apparently, and they warn that to argue with the bus driver will mean no ride at all.

After one hour and 18 minutes we left the airport—more than half the time it took to fly from London—and in another half hour we got to the city terminus. Confusion again in the unloading of baggage of a mere 20 people took another half hour of j-g saw puzzle patience, the task not eased by the fact that the man who had taken all our checks at the airport had decided to remain out there as it was a nice balmy day.

CONFUSION

There was much visiting and greetings of and by friends; an American Express guide wanted to show me St. Peter's while we were waiting; the man handing down the bags from the bus roof said they were too heavy and wanted 12 friends; a Greek and an Italian got into an extravagant argument over who had ordered the first taxi, only to find it pinched by a Canadian who was by now hungry and unamused.

But the hotel room I have just walked into has a balcony overlooking a truly grand and imperial city, and the bathroom is of indecent dimensions. If you don't hear from me tomorrow look in the bath down at the end with all the fascinating gadgets.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"MOST people," said the Elevator Man, "like to scoff at officialdom. Let a man raise his voice against 'red tape' and a dozen will echo his sentiments. Even a mention of such official terms as diplomatic usage, formal action, protocol and all the rest of the gobbledygook seems to get the average man's hackles up. Some of it, I suppose, is necessary. It helps to keep order in a part of our set-up that might soon look like a schoolyard free-for-all without it. But a lot of it is bunkum, and everybody has a cheer when some official or other shows a little human feeling by cutting through it. And it doesn't take much. A fella in a top hat and a Prince Albert may be a stuffed shirt, but if he's riding a bike or tying up a kid's shoelace you can figure his heart's in the right place. Go figure up!

"Over in Seoul," said the Elevator Man, "they must have something the same idea. I see in a news item where U.N. flags and banners were hung out to welcome the allied forces. A nice touch—probably prompted by a little more than diplomatic courtesy—but fair enough. The catch was that most families there have not only lost their homes but their clothing too. With a chilly night coming on, the liberating troops were hardly welcomed before the flags all disappeared. Mr. and Mrs. Seoul figured they'd be a lot more useful as shirts and blankets than as street decorations. Sounds sensible to me. I liked that touch in Ottawa on Saturday, too, when Abbott told reporters they could go to the big football game without fear of being scooped. He promised not to make any exchange rate announcements till the game was over. It would be a poor country where that could never happen. Going down!

"For a lot of these things," said the Elevator Man, "we have to depend on chance. The dog that runs across the parade grounds, the chair that collapses under the weighty official, the broken galluses, the smudge on the dignified nose—these are the little plums in life's pudding; the bright porch lights that add a little cheer."

THE HOME GARDEN

Time To Watch Out For Early Frosts

By JACK BEASTALL

Noticing the date-line on this article reminds me that this is the day we are asked to stay where we live until we give; our opportunity to show our thanks for a good season by helping those less fortunate than ourselves.

Frost seems to be the main topic of conversation between gardeners, and this year it kept up to past averages. On the 28th, last Thursday, around 6 in the morning, the thermometer touched 29 degrees in the lower sections of the city, and on Friday morning another three degrees of frost was recorded.

On the evening of the 29th the freezing point was reached by 10 p.m. and dropped to six degrees of frost by dawn on Saturday, low enough to put a fair coating of ice on a pall of water.

While many sections of the city did not have frost, and will not have it for another three or four weeks, those gardeners located in frost pockets will do well to record these dates for future reference.

OFF THE RECORD FROSTS

It is the newcomer to the city whose garden suffers the most at this time of year. The official booklet, "Climate of B.C." which contains temperature and rainfall averages for the past 10 years, does not take into consideration the great differences which obtain within a few blocks, because of the topography of the district.

There is a reason why we experience frosts when official records do not show it. We know that warm air rises and that the proximity of salt water will moderate temperatures; also that cold air collects in low spots—not on higher ground. Our official recording station is located on Gonzales Hill, 238 feet above sea level, with salt water at the base of the hill which modifies both summer and winter temperatures at this point.

Records for 1927 show that the seawater temperatures at Gonzales Point ranged from 46 degrees in January to 52 degrees in August, which would give lower summer, and higher winter, readings than experienced further inland. My squash vines were killed on the 28th, but on higher ground, within the distance of one block, they are still in good condition. This indicates the necessity for home gardeners to keep their own records if the optimum of success is to be achieved.

Estimates of the population of the Western Hemisphere when Columbus arrived vary from 8,000,000 to 75,000,000. A recent estimate, regarded as authoritative by the Smithsonian Institution, is 15,990,000.

GRANDMOTHER IN ALABAMA ENROLLS FOR COLLEGE DEGREE

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Mrs. Mabel Lightner Feagin, a sprightly grandmother, has enrolled at Huntingdon College and this fall will renew her pursuit of a diploma.

It was 50 years ago that Mrs. Feagin first set out to earn a college degree at Nashville, Tenn. She quit the Nashville College for Young Ladies to marry and rear a family.

Her husband died in 1910 and she went to work to support her four children. By 1939 she had eight children and decided to retire.

Defences In North Korea Scouted By U.N. Forces

Enemy Has Only Dozen Military Planes But Observers Say Airfields Being Built

By ELTON G. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Planning for the end of the Korean war threatens almost as many headaches for the planners of strategy and policy as the last three months of fighting.

The decision to carry the war beyond the 38th parallel, which divides North and South Korea, was only one of them, although it alone had many ramifications for the military planners.

Operations chiefs of the United Nations forces have had to estimate how much organized opposition should be expected in North Korea, prepare tactical plans, and figure the points at which the enemy will make his stands in resisting if he ignores surrender demands.

There is no definite information here on how extensively the Communists have prepared a defence line to hold in the region of the 38th parallel.

If the enemy waited until the launching of the U.N. counter-offensive two weeks ago, he hasn't had much time to build any major fixed fortifications immediately back of the 38th parallel.

While the U.N. commanders now have a reasonably precise idea of the number of ground troops in organized units still available to the Communists after the Red debacle in South Korea, they can not be absolutely certain about an enemy air force.

At the moment, they think there isn't any. Some intelligence reports place the total North Korean military planes at fewer than a dozen.

But have the Red Koreans, even in these apparent final stages of the war, continued to hope that the Soviet air force would come to their aid? Air reconnaissance within the last few days has developed that the Communists have been busy building new airfield installations at several points. Why have the North Koreans gone ahead with airfield construction if they have only a dozen planes left and with the odds of winning the war heavily against them?

Another factor to be reckoned with is persisting resistance by a Communist underground. Enemy soldiers need only to slip out of their uniforms and into the nondescript white garments of civilians to look like all other Koreans, either North or South.

Monthly meeting of the Victoria Horticultural Society will be held in the City Hall Tuesday, commencing at 7:30.

E. M. Renouf will speak on "Windbreaks and Hedges." He will suggest the best types of trees and shrubs for this locality and give instruction on proper planting and maintenance.

Hull, 79, Today Praises Firm Stand Of U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cordell Hull, former United States secretary of state, today advised the non-Communist world to "get on fire with the spirit of liberty" in a "double alert" against the dangers of Russian aggression.

In a birthday statement, the white-haired former cabinet officer praised the effectiveness of the United Nations in dealing with Communist aggression in Korea, but he warned that "grave difficulties and dangers still confront us on all sides."

Hull is 79 today. It is exactly six years since he wound up his work in the State Department, beset by illness, forced his retirement.

Since then he has recovered his health, and for many months has been able to receive friends regularly.

In the statement issued today, Hull said that "people everywhere should be highly gratified to observe that the United Nations has proved capable of acting effectively to oppose aggression."

"Grave difficulties and dangers still confront us on all sides," he continued. "But I am certain that with time and patience, and with devotion and sacrifice on the part of free nations, the United Nations will steadily grow in strength and capacity to fulfill its central function, the preservation of international peace and security."

NEW YORK—Until they develop a television camera that can embrace the entire field, showing all the diffuse action of a ball game with detail fine enough to follow the flight of the ball, the video version of baseball cannot be better than a make-shift substitute for the real thing. Watching a game in your living-room is like peering through a knothole in the fence, whence only a segment of the playing area is visible.

It is a peepshow rather than a pageant, but a peepshow has the advantage of intimacy. So has television, sometimes. The downstairs camera at Ebbets Field brings you closer to the individuals on the field than you can be in the best box seat. Not since the Phillies moved out of clubby little Baker Bowl has a fan been able to enjoy the same sensation of breathing down a player's collar that he gets through the big lens in Brooklyn.

Anyhow, you can study the expression on the pitcher's face as he broods over his next delivery, you get a beautiful closeup of the batter's stance, and when there is an exchange of personalities between player and umpire you learn more about the umpire's disposition, eyesight, judgment, physical charm and antecedents than his mother ever imagined.

Skill at lip-reading is not always a requirement for following the arguments. There was a celebrated occasion earlier this summer when some of the Leo Durocher's pure, rippling prose was picked up by a microphone and lines which would have been scrubbed out of a Restoration play were channeled into salons and saloons throughout the metropolitan area.

As an entertainment medium, television achieves its dramatic peak on such occasions. So it was the other night when the Giants were playing the Dodgers.

In the eighth inning the Giants were leading 4 to 3, but Brooklyn had the bases filled with one out. The left-handed Dave Koslo was called in to pitch for New York, and Burt Shotton responded by sending the right-handed Tommy Brown up to bat. Brown swung uncertainly, topping the ball, and although the television camera didn't show where the ball struck the ground, it did pick it up dribbling out onto the diamond in front of the plate.

Ordinarily when a ball is sliced off the bat and strikes the hitter's foot—which is, of course, in foul territory—the batsman either flops about on one leg like a wounded stork or, if he is the old Orfale type, just backs out of the box and waits for the umpire to dig up a new ball.

Brown dropped his bat and fled toward first base. Maybe he never thought the ball was fair, but he ran as though he thought so. Wes Westrum, the Giants' catcher, behaved as though he did, too. He sprang across the plate and pounced on the ball, came back to plant a foot on the plate for a forceout, then threw it first base for a double play, retiring the side and preserving the Giants' advantage.

Now drama busted out all over, by courtesy of the big lens. Duke Snider, who had been waiting for the next turn at bat, rushed forward and struck Frank Dascoli in the abdomen with his abdomen. Brown also rushed the plate umpire, making as if to lay profane paws upon the forbidden vents.

Sundry other Dodgers charged in, some to join the uproar and some to foment peace. Jackie Robinson, on the perimeter of the group, was hopping straight up and down and shouting. Clyde Sukeforth and Jake Pitler, the coaches, got a restraining clutch on the stomach of Brown, who kept making small, futile rushes at the umpire.

When the scene had been played to the hilt, the camera accompanied Brown back toward the dugout. His lips were moving and he seemed to be offering repetitious observations regarding the conditions of Mr. Dascoli's birth.

After a slow start, Brown had given a richly rewarding performance. It was weakened, however, by the delay caused when he tried to run out the play at first base. One got the impression that he had missed his entrance cue and, walking onstage tardily, played the scene as an afterthought. A student of the theatre would have to admit that the performance lacked what is technically called "initial audience impact."

If television is here to stay, there'll have to be some polishing up of these fine points.

San Diego Padres narrowed the gap between them and league-leading Oakland to five games over the week-end as they split a Sunday doubleheader in Pacific Coast Baseball League play.

Oakland knocked over the Padres 7 to 4 at home in the first game, then missed a chance to clinch a tie for first by losing the second 12 to 9 in a slugfest where 12 pitchers showed.

Oakland has seven games left. Elsewhere, Portland kept in fourth place by adding to its prolonged resurgence with a doubleheader victory over Los Angeles Sunday at home, 6 to 3, 9 to 6. They won 5 to 0 Saturday. Beavers have won 22 of their last 25 games and hold a 9 to 2 edge over the Angels. The action ended their home games.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The executive of the B.C. Track and Field Association last night nominated distance runner Bill Parnell of North Vancouver for the Norton Crowe Trophy.

The trophy, awarded by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, is given each year to that body's choice as Canada's outstanding athlete.

Parnell, mile champion at the British Empire Games, has been racing out of Victoria. Bob Hutchinson, Victoria junior sprinter, got a nod in the junior division.

Dorothy Herberson and Shirley Fry of Gorge Vale Sunday defeated Mrs. L. McIntyre and Mrs. S. Paterson of Gorge Vale, one up to keep possession of the E. D. Todd women's golf brooches.

These two Victoria hunters, Bill Broadfoot, left, and Walter Parker, were tramping through woods between Leechtown and Sooke Sunday when they came across pair of wolves. Parker bagged both. Male, shown on bonnet of car, pushed 80 pounds on scales. Female, on bumper, weighed 65 pounds. Hunters were looking for deer.

NEW YORK (UP)—Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals won the National League batting championship for the fourth season and Billy Goodman copped the American League honors.

unofficial figures showed today. Musial hit .346 to beat out Jackie Robinson, the Brooklyn star who won the title last year.

Robinson hit .328 for second. Then came Duke Snider of Brooklyn with .321 and Del Ennis of Philadelphia and Walker Cooper of Boston, each with .313.

Musial previously won the title in 1943 with .357, 1946 with .365 and 1948 with .376.

Goodman hit .354. George Kell of Detroit, the 1949 American League batting champ, was second with .340 and then came Dom DiMaggio of Boston with .326, Phil Rizzuto of New York and Larry Doby of Cleveland, each with .324.

Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh won the home-run derby with 47, while Al Rosen of Cleveland led the American with 37. Walt Drope and Vern Stephens of the Red Sox batted in 144 runs in the American and Del Ennis 125 in the National.

NEW YORK (UP)—How would you like it if your son clipped your firm for a couple of hundred thousand dollars?

It happened to George Sisler, and he explained, "I felt awful and terrific at the time."

Sisler is head scout of the Brooklyn Baseball Dodgers. His son, Dick, plays for the Philadelphia Phillies. Dick hit the home run yesterday which cut the Dodgers out of the National League championship, the World Series and their attendant cash and glory.

"You know," mused Pop Sisler, who was himself a great first baseman, "I have three sons. When each was 10, Dick looked like the worst ball player of the lot. I hoped one of my sons would follow my footsteps, but I never thought Dick would be the one."

NEW YORK (UP)—The fuzzy-cheeked Philadelphia Phillies, winners of their first National League championship after 35 barren years, were 2 to 1 betting underdogs today in their impending World Series with the venerable New York Yankees.

But these Phils were used to having the odds, and the fates, against them.

Leading the league by seven and a half games at the start of the last week's play, they agonized as this margin was slowly chopped down. Then, in the final game of the season yesterday, needing to win to stave off a pennant tie, they suddenly rose from their defeat-pocked depths.

They battled the more-experienced Brooklyn Dodgers for nine undecided innings, then won the game, 4 to 1, in the 10th when Dick Sisler hit a home run with two on.

Their proud manager, former college professor Eddie Sawyer, said today, "The odds may be against us but give our boys a chance when we meet the Yankees in the world series."

The Phillies may be underdogs when the big show opens in Shibe Park at Philadelphia Wednesday, but Sawyer says, "I have to laugh off those odds because I think of what they were against us when we started this pennant race back in April."

At that time it would have been better than 20 to 1 that the young whippers which Sawyer had assembled would be able to beat out the Brooklyn Dodgers and other seasoned campaigners for the National League championship.

But they did it, even though final victory came mighty hard. In that glorious 10-inning, 4 to 1 triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers—which was achieved Sunday on Sisler's three-run homer, Robin Roberts' five-hit pitching with the clutch tough and Richie Ashburn's "out-of-this-world" throw from outfield to home plate—the Phillies proved once again they can go with the best when the battle is joined.

They had to win to keep the National League flag from winding up in a two-way tie for first place and necessitating a three-game pennant playoff. The Phillies supposedly were ready for the discard, having lost five straight, seven of their last nine, and going through 10 games without seeing a starting pitcher.

Roberts, pitching in his third game in five days, and winding up with a brilliant five-hitter that gave him his 20th triumph of the season, was almost tired enough to drop when he stepped to the plate to start the 10th. But he shot a single to centre, and Eddie Waitkus followed with another. Ashburn's bunt attempt went awry and Roberts was forced at third; but his contribution already had been made.

Up to the plate stepped Sisler, a son of a baseball Hall of Fame occupant, George Sisler, the old Brownie first baseman. Father watched son at this moment with mixed emotion, because the elder Sisler is head of the vast Dodger scouting enterprises.

Smashing the ball to the opposite field, the left-handed Philly outfielder landed a home run into the left field stands that for all practical purposes ended a great pitching battle between Roberts and Dodger Don Newcombe.

There was little else that mattered in the wind-up of one of the most stirring National League seasons in recent years. In the National League, the Giants improved on their third-place position by defeating the Braves, 5 to 1, at New York, and wound up the season five games behind the winning Phillies. The Reds defeated the Pirates, 3 to 2,

Vets of France entry in the junior division of the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer League trimmed the Duncan eleven in their league game Sunday by a score of 5 to 0.

The up-landers pushed all the way but were unable to find the mark behind the Vets' goal. In the league's first division of the juvenile bracket, Wetherals defeated Esquimalt Meat Market, 3 to 0, and Tillcum beat Pitzer and Nex, 4 to 0.

Army, Navy and Air Force Vets won out over James Bay in a close third division juvenile fixture. Score was 3 to 2.

James Bay's entry in division four won its game with Cadboro Bay, however, by a 3 to 0 margin.

On Saturday, Army, Navy and Air Force Vets won their first encounter of the season, edging Moe's Champs, 3 to 2, in a third division match.

In a lower division four contest, Argosy Coffee eked out a 2 to 1 triumph over Cordova Bay.

Admiral W. B. Creary presented individual prizes to divoters representing the Royal Canadian Navy Golf Association and the Dockyard Civil Servants following a challenge match between the two groups Saturday at the Gorge Vale Golf Club. The Tars captured the match.

SOCCER LEAGUE LEAD STILL BEING SHARED

Esquimalt, Britannia Branch Clubs Remain Tied After Game On Sunday

Esquimalt and Britannia Branch entries in the Victoria and District Soccer League remained tied for first place in league standing when their game Sunday at Athletic Park resulted in a 3 to 3 draw.

The Esquimalt club had a decided advantage with the Britannians playing short-handed for three-quarters of the game. The Legion team could field only 10 players at the start and was only at full strength after the middle of the second half.

The municipal lads missed numerous scoring opportunities with their man advantage. The entire first half was scoreless.

The Britannians opened strongly in the final half with goals by Jimmy Davison and Johnny Moss inside 11 minutes.

The goal by Moss was headed in after a corner kick by Davison.

Bill Walker put the Esquimalt team back in the game with two picture goals late in the period. With four minutes remaining in the game, Esquimalt went ahead for the second time on a goal by Nib Sage.

With two minutes of play remaining, Britannia was given a penalty kick but the shot by Davison was stopped handily by Esquimalt's goal tender, Ed Hardy.

A second penalty kick gave the Legion men their chance with just one minute to go. The penalty came when Hardy came out of his goal and an Esquimalt back used his hands to save a ball sailing toward the wide opening.

TIE SCORE
The kick was taken by Alex McCormick who made no mistake about getting it through to tie the score.

At the lower Beacon Hill pitch Sunday, Alma beat Oak Bay.

Big League Turnstiles Count Fewer Customers

Major league baseball drew 17,226,824 fans during the 1950 season, a drop of 15 per cent from 1949, according to an unofficial survey by the Associated Press.

The National League lured 8,025,169 customers and the American 9,201,655 during the campaign which ended Sunday. In 1949, 9,484,718 fans patronized National League games and 10,730,617 American League contests for a two-league total of 20,215,365. The National League attendance in 1950 was off 16 per cent and the American 14 per cent.

Philadelphia's pennant-winning Phillies, Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and New York drew over a million this year. Only Philadelphia and Cincinnati failed to draw a million in 1949.

New York Yankees, Detroit, Cleveland and Boston were the only American League clubs to draw more than a million fans this season. The same teams also were the only ones to draw a million in 1949.

The Phillies, Detroit and St. Louis Browns were the only clubs to better their 1949 attendance.

Morrison To Meet Gowan For Title

Next Sunday's 36-hole final for the Uplands' golf championship will see Bob Morrison pitted against Don Gowan.

The two won the right to play for the club's title in matches played yesterday. Morrison won from J. Barlow, one up, and Gowan won from F. Scroggs, 3 and 2.

Other results of Sunday games: First Flight—G. Hunter won from R. Elliott, 4 and 3; C. Duncan won from H. Francis, 2 and 1.

Second Flight—L. A. Rees won from L. Ferris, 3 and 2; C. Hunter won from G. Austin, 4 and 3.

Third Flight—A. Ockwell won from M. Duane, at the 20th; Stan Nixon won from J. Skelton, one up.

Fourth Flight—J. W. Kempston won from J. Walker at the 19th; B. Royers won from J. Bromley at the 19th.

Fifth Flight—W. Luney won from D. Johnson, 2 and 1; F. McClement won from H. Zoruk, one up.

Sixth Flight—J. Dawson won from E. Casner at the 19th; G. Patterson won from D. King, 7 and 5.

Eighth Flight—W. Grey won from R. Bronley, 7 and 6; J. A. Betts won from T. Jacklin, one up.

Island Team Wins At Heals Range Shoot

Eight island sharpshooters managed to outpoint a Vancouver team Sunday at Heals Range to bring back the handsome Butchart Shield to Vancouver Island.

Teams from the island and the mainland have competed for the shield since 1924. It was won last year by the mainland.

Only seven points separated the winning and losing teams Sunday. The island team netted 1,115 points, while the Vancouver shooters notched 1,109.

R.C.M.P. Inspector Jake Young was high man of the day, scoring 146 out of a possible 150 points.

Other scores by members of the island team were: Major A. M. Taylor Spittal, 143; Sgt. Albert Ashe, 142; Lieut. Hugh Thorburn, 142; Sidney Ray, 140; Joe Gibault, 136; Capt. Jean Dunbar, 133; and Fred Richardson, 133.

'Your Turn First'

Vic Raschi, right, tells teammate Allie Reynolds he will get first crack at the young Philadelphia Phillies, who Sunday won their first National League pennant in 35 years. Yanks and the Phillies open the best-of-seven World Series Wednesday at Shibe Park.

Poor Teamwork Lands Victoria United In Trouble At Callister

Victoria United were taught a sharp lesson at Callister Park Saturday when for the second week in succession they were beaten by North Shore. This time the score was 7 to 2 and the contrast between the sides was even more marked than it had been the previous week on grass-covered Athletic Park.

The lesson for United was that they cannot hope to go anywhere until they learn the fundamentals of team play. Checking at line outs was inexcusably lax; players roamed out of position until they were run ragged; tackling was indecisive, and passing flabby. A weighty indictment but one that must be faced before this newly-organized United will make its mark in Pacific Coast soccer.

In an effort to secure more experience, United fielded two Westminster Royals players, Bob Findler at right back, and Jack Spry at inside left, in addition to Wallace Milligan, and the two newcomers not properly tuned up, had little chance of revealing themselves in the general confusion.

ROBBINS MISSING

The absence of Joe Robbins, who had been the best defender in the first game, was a blow, and the experiment of playing his brother Jack in the pivotal berth was not a success. He had not the strength or experience to clear his lines. Latterly when Pickburn took over the role there was a distinct improvement, but unfortunately by that time the game was won and lost.

Although given poor protection, Bill McAllister did not shine in goal until late in the game, while Den McGee proved disappointing as an emergency left half. On several occasions when goals were scored against them, the United wing half-backs were both too far upfield to lend any assistance.

North Shore, on the other hand, played smooth, effortless football under the experienced guidance of Alex Reid and Jim Spencer. They also had two top class marksmen, Frank Whitaker, who took over from Brian Philley at centre, and the youngster, Dave Kent, who played inside right. Whitaker had four goals, three in the first half, and Kent had three, one in the first half.

FIRST SCORE

United's only improvement was that they managed to score. Their first goal came from Wallace Milligan, who challenged Calpins when he came out to pick up a throw-in and before the goalkeeper could get back. Milligan, from an assist by Walker,

NEW PLAYERS TO STRIP TUESDAY

Take Ice 17-Strong For Game With Hall Proteges

The Victoria Cougars will take the ice at the Memorial Arena Tuesday night with a much stronger line-up against Coley Hall's Vancouver Canucks in a pre-season Pacific Coast Hockey League exhibition tussle than they showed Saturday at Nanaimo when they trimmed the mainlanders, 4 to 3. Game time is 8.30.

Checking in Sunday were right-winger Lorne Davis and defence-man Morley MacNeill. Scheduled to arrive early this morning and attend the first workout at the Memorial Arena were coach Roger Leger, Joe Lepine, Reg Abbott, Andy Heberton and Bobby Frampton.

Business manager Fred Hutchinson reported last year's stars, Eddie Dorohoy and Ed "Spider" Mazur, were not expected to arrive until sometime Tuesday, but would probably catch the exhibition tilt with the Canucks. With only eight of their own players on hand Saturday, the Cougars borrowed four rookies from Nanaimo and Vancouver's Wimpy Jones. Only one of the borrowed talent fitted into the statistics, however, young Ernie Rucks of Nanaimo. He scored Victoria's second tally.

Although the game was poor as far as spectator hockey was concerned, the Cougars skated much better than could be expected for their first workout. But it was last year's holdovers that stood out, along with goalie Hec Highton.

Veteran F.C.H.L. player Joe Evans and popular Roy McKay showed up particularly well, as did amateurs Fred Hildebrand and Denny Huddleston.

Hub Macey took Bill Shill's pass to put the Canucks away late in the first frame Saturday, but Jack McIntyre rapped home the equalizer two minutes later.

Mrs. Veach Named Fencers' Prexy

Mrs. Edith Veach was re-elected president of the Victoria Amateur Fencers' Club at the recent annual meeting of the club.

Others named to executive positions included H. Evans, secretary; Miss Ella Smillie and R. Mahood, publicity; F. Lepine and Miss Deveys, social directors.

In her annual address, Mrs. Veach expressed the opinion that there was room for other fencing clubs in the Victoria district and stated that the Victoria club was willing to assist such clubs in their organization.

Leniency For Soldiers Of North Korea

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government has decided on a policy of victory without vengeance toward the defeated people of North Korea. This underlies Gen. MacArthur's surrender demand.

That a policy of leniency would apply to the ordinary North Korean soldier was made clear by MacArthur in the broadcast he made calling upon North Korean forces to surrender.

He said North Korean prisoners would be treated in a civilized manner and would be permitted to return to their homes as soon as practicable.

The attitude of leniency, which President Truman is said to approve fully, does not cover two relatively-small groups of North Koreans for whom stern justice will be sought when and if circumstances make it possible. Those are the leaders of the North Korean Communist re-

260 Youngsters Compete For Hospital Baby Show Honors

The girls were plump and pretty and the boys quite handsome when the Junior Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital held their third and most successful baby show to date in the auditorium of the Nurses' Residence.

Two hundred and sixty youngsters, ranging from a few weeks to 18 months—all born in St. Joseph's since the last baby show—vied for honors and a silver trophy cup before three well-known doctors who, in the medical tradition, preferred to remain anonymous.

"The event drew 280 applications, 100 more than last year," said Miss Hilda Smith, convener.

Taking top honors was sturdy little Eileen Patricia O'Keefe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. O'Keefe, 643 Langford Street. Judged first in the one-year to 18-months class and best baby in the show. She was awarded the perpetual trophy for a year and a permanent trophy cup for herself.

Other winners were: Garry Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Price, 162 Medina Street, and Valerie Walleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Walleen, 366 St. Charles, best boy and girl in the one-month to six-month class.

In the six months to a year, Gerald Mayzes, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Mayzes, Royal Oak, and Lynda Adams, daughter of Mrs. Phyllis Adams, 3891 Cadboro Bay Road, were top boy and girl.

John Cockrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Cockrell, 2340 Forbest Street, was the best boy in the one-year to 18-month class.

National Radio Week Opens To Show Latest Techniques, Developments

Displays Show In Victoria Stores From Today Until Next Saturday

Attractive window displays and special arrangements for public inspection and audition of the latest type radios will be highlighted by Greater Victoria radio and appliance houses in their participation of National Radio Week being observed across the country from today to next Saturday.

Broadcasting stations, radio manufacturers and radio sales people are combining their efforts to put radio into the public spotlight during the week.

Executives active in the industry here said today that the dates selected for National Radio Week would give a splendid opportunity to present the newest models. They reported substantial deliveries following the close of the railway strike which had delayed some goods in transit.

They said that the national slogan, "Radio Is Better Than Ever," was well-chosen because of the many technical advances in design and manufacture resulting from research in the industry's laboratories.

TECHNIQUES EMPHASIZED

These efforts emphasized techniques by which new fidelity and tonal perfection have been achieved to provide greater listening pleasure.

Victorians who accept the general invitation to inspect the latest word in radio, will also find recorded music better than before with high notes clearer, bass notes richer and fuller. Surface noise is a bygone thing in the new sets, and from the collectors' standpoint the lighter weight arms with minimum pressure assure longer life for each record.

Similar attention has been given to the matter of making the physical appearance of sets blend into the decorative scheme of the modern home. Cabinets are now finished in a variety of woods, mahogany, walnut, limed oak, honey and golden mahogany to meet individual preference.

Canadian talent will take over the limelight in a specially-planned series of radio programs which will be presented during National Radio Week.

All networks of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will take part, as will private stations who are members of the Canadian Association of Broadcasting.

Entertainment, information and even constructive criticism of radio itself is on the list, which will be heard under such program titles as: Startime, Opportunity Knocks, This Week, Beat the Champ, Critically Speaking, Neighborly News, Summer Theatre, Farm Families and Farm Forum.

Floral Britannia To Greet Tourists

ST. MARGARET'S BAY, Kent, Eng. (CP)—Britannia, in flowers, will greet next year's Festival of Britain visitors entering the country by Channel routes.

Civic leaders consider St. Margaret's "the gateway to England" for tourists from the continent, and wish to give them a symbol of greeting.

The floral Britannia, 100 feet long and 70 feet broad, on a part of the downs which slope to the sea, will be clearly visible to ships and aircraft.

PROTECTION FOR PUBLIC

Radio Technicians Hold To Rigid Code

By NORMAN TOVEY

Although the Associated Radio Technicians of B.C. have become well-known over the past few years, we feel that our friends, the radio owners, are always interested in the progress of the association that exists mainly for their benefit, and we like to welcome the new arrivals in British Columbia, and acquaint them, too, of what we are trying to do.

Since 1928, this body of radio technicians has been constantly striving to raise the standards of the radio trade, and to date has achieved a high measure of success. Maintaining, as we do, the highest possible technical standards, a rigid code of business ethics, standardized fair prices and a guaranteed satisfaction for the public, it can fairly be said that our main concern is for the welfare of others, for it is obvious that the radio owner stands to benefit greatly from our activities.

FIELD BROADENED

The radio and electronic field has broadened with astonishing rapidity during the past decade, and to a far greater extent than the average person realizes, and it is by no means easy for radio technicians to keep up with the progressive developments in radio design.

To do this, and to be able to render quick and efficient service to the modern radio or television receiver, involves a considerable amount of study as well as familiarity with modern and complex test equipment.

Part of the program of the A.R.T. consists of technical training by lecture and demonstration, facilities which are available to all members, and of which the high spot this year was a three-day town meeting of radio technicians, held in Vancouver in June. Many technicians from Victoria and upland districts attended this meeting, to listen to lectures from top rank Canadian and American electronic engineers, and to witness demonstrations of the latest in test equipment, and other technical displays.

A feature of the meeting was a series of lectures on television by a master of the subject, A. C. W. Saunders, of Boston, Mass., while Nick Foster, the eminent lecturer from Seattle, gave further talks on various aspects of this newest form of entertainment.

Today there are, in Victoria, many members of this association who are well grounded in the principles of television, and able to assure you of the best reception of television programs, consistent with the conditions invariably associated with long-range viewing.

That is but one side of the activities of this group, whose members are drawn from all sections of the industry, employers and employees alike, all meeting together on a common ground.

This year sees an annual competition being inaugurated, a contest offering a shield for the most efficient service shop in B.C., with other prizes for runners-up. Shops will be judged on efficient handling of repair work, workshop and personal cleanliness, adequacy of test equipment and tools, and, above all, customer relations.

Incidentally, it is the firm conviction of members of the A.R.T. that while certain minor repairs can be carried out in the customer's home, the most efficient work can be done in the shop equipped for the job with the modern test instruments designed for replacing guesswork with precision and certainty.

The association wants it to be well known throughout Canada that the radio and appliance trade is characterized by fair trade practices.

Directors of the Victoria branch of the association are as follows: Chairman, A. E. Food; vice-chairman, Jack Wilcox; secretary, R. W. Patrick; and directors Dave Bamfield, Tyson Dickinson, S. Simmons, M. Scott, M. Humber and W. Wilson. Past chairman is M. Aubrey Kent.

Cheeky S. African Park Animals Cause Rangers, Visitors Trouble

SKUKUSA, South Africa (CP)—Visitors to Kruger National Park discover the animals are becoming mischievous and cheeky.

It's fatal to leave your shoes outside your tent these days. The hyenas in the district have developed a taste for shoe leather.

The disappearance of the shoes had been noticed for some time, and rangers began to doubt the presence of sneak thieves when only one shoe would be taken.

A watch was kept one night. An old hyena slipped into camp, bit into a boot and then carried it off. The animals also steal meat left hanging in trees outside the huts.

Other animals are creating nuisances of themselves, especially the younger ones.

One motorist recently was held up by a baby hippopotamus in the middle of the road. The hippo wouldn't move, and just watched interestedly as the driver gesticulated at him. The motorist finally got out and shooed the "baby" back to the river a quarter of a mile away.

At Pretorius Kop, just outside the park boundary, one young zebra is busy wrecking mealie and lucerne fields. He's not hungry, he just gets a kick out of trampling the crops. The natives chase him away, but he's back almost before they're in their huts.

Buck, too, are giving rangers trouble. They wait until lights are out at 10 p.m., then jump the fences to get tit-bits from the rangers' gardens.

Why I Believe There Is A God

By FULTON OURSLER

CHAPTER 13

Then there was that other woman, one I never saw, but whose history so full of evil and wonder, was told to me over coffee cups one night at a dinner in Washington.

It began long, long ago in a poor Chicago parish.

The young assistant to the pastor had been warned that his new assignment,

"back of the yards" in the abattoir quarter, would be a nightmare job. In that region of bull pens, slaughterhouses, and slums there was more delinquency than in all the rest of the town, poverty and ignorance in the flats begetting crime in the streets.

One muggy afternoon in deep July he sat in the airless chamber of the confessional. Out of doors the mercury neared 100 degrees; in the covered recess where he listened in darkness it was hotter still. On both sides of the box, men and women stood in lines and waited.

Finally, during a brief lull, the young priest stepped out of the confessional cabinet to get a breath of air. A whiff of perfume startled him. Who was making the church smell like a beauty parlor? Then he heard the husky whisper of a girl:

"Take it easy, big boy. I didn't come in here on religious business, so you can relax."

"What are you here for?" he demanded.

"Oh, I just promised my old lady I would come to church and pray, that's all. She's waiting outside. Could I get in the confessional for a while? I only want to stay here about five minutes, to let her think I'm going through with it. But no confession, you understand!"

The priest mopped his dripping forehead, cleared his throat cautiously, and began:

"Listen, child—"

"Call me Aggie. That's my name. Aggie Retzinek."

"I am not asking your name," he said, "but I will tell you it's Russian—Agafia. It's a Greek word. It means good."

"That's a joke on you, big boy. Let me tell you something. I'm the worst girl in this town."

"Oh no you're not! I know the worst girl in this town."

"And who is she?"

"She's the girl who thinks she is the best girl in town. There was a remote banter in his tone. "You know, I might make your confession for you."

"Okay, wise guy! Let's hear you do it—and a buck says you'll flop!"

FRIZZLED HAIR

In one glance the man of God took her in—a short-necked, long-eyed girl whose frizzled hair was tied in pink bows. The eldritch face was aged in experience, yet hopelessly young and futile; cat-like eyes looked at him in steadfast contempt.

"I see," he muttered sadly. "Sure! Now you've looked me over, you know!"

Her voice, husky as it was, lacked the usual brothel coarseness; it was more like the voice of a child with a cold.

"Wouldn't you like to know why I still say I am the worst girl?" she asked. "Listen, big boy—I just got out of the state reformatory for girls. Reformatory!"

She spewed out the word, disgorging with it a torrent of profanity.

"I fell for your holy stuff at first," she went on. "All I cared about was getting out of there. So I went to chapel and I prayed to God. But He must have been too busy for the likes of me."

"Perhaps He said no."

"Have it any way you want. I didn't go free, that's all."

"Go on."

"All right. You asked for it. I made a prayer to the devil!"

Even in the gloom of the church she could see the blanched face and wondering eyes of the perspiring priest. Here was an unfamiliar transgression indeed: "diablerie," faith turned wickedly upside down!

"But the devil," he prodded quietly, "doesn't he always ask a price?"

"Why shouldn't he? Don't you? I promised him if he would only get me out of that place, I would make nine sacrilegious communions. I did too. I took communion and I cursed God! Plenty! And you know what? On the eighth time I got paroled. So now, big boy—what do you say to that?"

"I say he got a good bargain, that's what I say! This devil you prayed to, he gives you what you call freedom and in exchange he gets an immortal soul. That is a wonderful thing—the immortal soul of a child of God. But—"

"Don't get yourself so worked up, big boy."

"You're cheating the devil—and I thank God for it. There's still time!"

a special need. Will you stay for one hour in the church and pray?"

"None refused. Soon the pews were spotted with parishioners praying for someone and something of which they knew nothing."

When afternoon and evening confessions were over at last, the priest came out of the stifling box.

"Every one like her was a virgin once," he whispered to himself as he walked up the aisle toward the altar. Kneeling, he laid hot palms on the firm coolness of the marble balustrade. From the street came the distant calls of late hucksters, crying strawberries and water melons, as he began the first Our Father.

Hour after hour dragged by. At last the church was emptied for the night, except for the one praying figure. He was still keeping solitary vigil when a sexton shuffled in to put out the lights and close the doors.

"Never mind!" called the priest. "I'll lock up," and bowed his head again in his long bivouac of prayer.

It was well after midnight when he heard the click-clock of heels coming down the marble aisle. Hope surged in his soul—and then a pallid whiff of perfume made him gasp with joyous certainty. He did not move or look around as she knelt beside him, but he heard her begin to weep.

"If I had not waited for her," the priest told me, "she would have found the doors locked and would have turned away, perhaps never to come back. Agatha is a wonderful girl today."

I have told this story to men of many faiths, and the feelings of all were summed up in what Harry Emerson Fosdick said:

"I salute this priest! He is a real servant of Christ, this Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen!"

(From the book entitled, "Why I Know There Is A God." Copyright 1950, by Fulton Oursler.)

U.N. To Make Decisions Of Great Importance — Pearson

NEW YORK (CP)—Hon. L. B. Pearson said tonight decisions may have to be taken at the present United Nations General Assembly which "may have far-reaching importance for peace and security in the whole world."

Canada's External Affairs Minister said the days ahead in the Assembly meeting will be important. He spoke in an address prepared for delivery over the CBC's Trans-Canada Network.

Pearson noted that Canada abstained on the vote in the Assembly last week on a resolution seeking to oust Nationalist China from the U.N.

"We thought that this whole question of Chinese representation was so important that it should be given further examination and not decided in the first hours of the Assembly," he said.

Last of the many American tour parties to visit Victoria this year, a group of 45, Peoria, Ill., businessmen and farmers spent the week-end at the Empress Hotel.

Traveling under the sponsorship of the Peoria Journal and radio station WMBD, they visited Butchart's Gardens Saturday and spent the remainder of their visit holidaying.

In charge of the group are John F. Wenke, farm editor of the Peoria Journal and Emil Bill, farm director for WMBD.

'Golden Jubilee' Plan For Churchill

LONDON (AP)—Fifty years ago Sunday, Winston Churchill was elected to the House of Commons for the first time and Tuesday the Conservatives will give him a "golden jubilee" dinner.

Churchill first ran for the House of Commons in 1899 in the Oldham district but was defeated. He tried again in the same district Oct. 1, 1900, and won.

Since then he has sought reelection 16 times and suffered defeat four times. He has served in the Commons continuously since 1924.

ACTIVITIES ALREADY BEGUN

Mount View High Student Council Wasting No Time In Laying Plans

Members of the Mount View Students' Council are wasting no time in making plans for the present year. The executive, composed of Bagh Singh, president; Frank Russell, vice-president; Joselyn Provan, secretary, and Jean Provan, treasurer, are investigating the possibility of obtaining school pennants and house crests.

At the first council meeting it was also decided to hold the initial dance of the year on Oct. 27. Good news to boys is the fact that it will be a co-ed dance with the Hometowners providing the music. A point yet to be decided on is whether it will be a masquerade or a barn dance.

First edition of the Mount View Scribe was published Friday under the direction of its new editor, Bill Fletcher, and his assistant Dinah Kerr. Three hundred copies of the paper were made available to students of the school.

The operetta "Enchanted Isle," originally produced last year by the Glee Club, will be presented again at the School Trustees' Convention to be held here next week. Cast includes Shirley Coles, Wayne Holstrom, Verna Aspray, Melvin Smith and Ray Petch. Ray is the winner of a recent "teen talent" contest.

FRIDAY 15TH INITIATION Iona Stewart, president of the girls' H-Y at Mount View, is looking forward to an eventful year for the club. First event of the year will be the initiation of new club members Friday, Oct. 13. It seems that even the calendar is against the new members.

Mount Douglas' Drama Club hopes to produce as many plays as its members can successfully manage during the year. There is even a possibility that the club will turn out a radio play and a puppet show. Friday night new students attended their first high school function as they enjoyed an evening of fun at the annual class party.

Esquimalt High's commencement exercises are scheduled for Wednesday when athletic letters, prefect pins, citizenship and scholastic awards will be presented. The day before, members of the boys' H-Y will spend their noon-hour selling hot dogs to raise money for club activities. Rep basketball practices are continuing as the team gets into shape.

First open house at Esquimalt will be October 31 when students gather in the school for an evening of informal fun.

Oak Bay High's first Student Council meeting was held Friday where it was decided to hold the year's first dance Oct. 31. In addition it was decided to have the annual prelim party after school next Friday.

All of Oak Bay's rep teams are preparing to uphold the high standards of achievement set by the school's athletes in previous years.

Even the rugby team that will not be in inter-high competition until after Christmas is getting into condition. It might be that they are worried that Vic High will win the cup they came so close to winning last year.

First big event for Vic High will be their inter-house swim gala at the Crystal Garden next Friday. Calibre of swimming at the school in both past and present is high, even when compared on a Dominion basis. Canadian titleholders who will be swimming Friday are Norma Stewart and Stan Powell with a large number of rising stars also competing.

BOOSTER PASSES

At its first meeting Tuesday, the student council made plans to hold divisional and individual competition in the sale of booster passes to Friday night basketball games. It appears that Friday nights this year will be bigger and better than ever as they again are the main feature of Vic High's social life. One indication of this is that Bruce Baird is attempting to organize a tumbling club to assist the majorettes with entertaining between games.

Prefects at Vic High were elected by grade 12 students Thursday. Eight boys and eight girls were chosen from a total of 32 nominations. Students with important positions in the school, who would otherwise be eligible to become prefects, will be made honorary prefects.

AROUND THE HI-WAYS

Mt. View's Drama Club hopes to present Dickens' "Christmas Carol" during the yule season. . . . Mt. View and Mt. Douglas are both organizing square dance clubs in anticipation of inter-high competition. . . . There is a strong possibility that a precision drill team might be formed at Mt. Doug. . . . Pat Hammill expects to be organizing the Esquimalt cheerleaders soon. . . . Vic High booster pass competition will not get underway until after their swim gala. . . . There are hopes for a dance after one of the basketball games some Friday night in November at V.H.S. . . . Vic High's prelim night will be a month late this year, Nov. 8. . . . Oak Bay and Vic High are both scheduling dances Dec. 19, last day of school before Christmas. Vic High's Jazz Club will hold an organization meeting next week.

Purchasers, Exporters, Importers Closely Watching Swing Of Dollar

By FORBES RHUDE

Canadian Press Business Editor

Canada's action in freeing her dollar is a demonstration of the strength of the Canadian economy.

If she weren't strong and prosperous, if the world weren't buying her goods, she wouldn't dare risk freeing it.

Freeing the dollar means that it is put on about the same basis as groceries. You go into a store and decide whether you will buy tea or coffee at current prices. If the price is low enough, you buy; if it is too high, you may not; and then again, if you want tea or coffee badly enough, you will buy at almost any price.

In an international sense the Canadian dollar is on much the same basis. If other peoples want Canadian dollars with which to buy things in Canada, then the price goes up to the point where people don't want the goods that much and then it stops or goes down. But no matter how high it went, the United States would probably keep on buying Canadian newsprint and nickel, for instance.

Having said the Canadian dollar is freed, one might turn around and say it is not freed. It is not free entirely because the Foreign Exchange Control Board still enforces some regulations and ready to take further action if necessary. Here is an example:

Let us say that you ask today for $5,000 to travel in the United States. Under an absolutely free dollar you would get $5,000 in U.S. currency, for which the equivalent in Canadian currency would be paid out. To that extent you would be creating an increased demand for U.S. dollars and a lessened demand for Canadian money.

It is not likely, however, that the board will allow you to have as much as $5,000, except for good reason—so you aren't allowed to exert your pressure on the market.

How free in practice the dollar will actually be will depend upon how things work out?

Several factors will tend to keep the true picture out of focus for a while. The people, for instance, who have been buying the Canadian dollar on the assumption it would go up will be trying to decide whether to cash in. If they try to cash in too fast, they may depress the price.

There will be a return of risk, of course, and of possibility of profit in foreign exchange dealings.

IMPORTS, EXPORTS

Importers and exporters, too, will find life more complicated, though there are established ways in which they may protect themselves against too great fluctuations.

Free currencies all over the

Monoxide In Movie House Lays Out 100

DETROIT (AP)—More than 100 persons were overcome by carbon monoxide gas that swept the Lasky Theatre here Sunday night. No fatalities were reported.

Those stricken with the fumes were rushed to hospitals. Twelve persons were injured in a stampede that developed after the audience of more than 500 realized the theatre was filled with a deadly gas.

Fire department inhalator teams worked in the theatre lobby.

Sgt. Glenn Bennett of the arson squad said the gas escaped through a rusted muffler on the gas-powered motor that operates the theatre's air-conditioning unit.

New Wage Contract

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Westinghouse Electric Corporation and the C.I.O. International Union of Electrical Workers have signed a new contract giving 50,000 workers a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. Negotiations are continuing with three other unions in Westinghouse. They represent another 50,000 men. Previous average wage was $1.56 an hour.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

"The time has come," said Generous George, "to show the stuff we're made of. The man who helps his fellow creature is the man worthwhile and all that sort of thing."

"Cut out the gab and play bridge," growled West.

"That's very unkind of you," said George. "But just to show you that I hold no grudges, I'll now give you two tricks in the very suit that you opened."

West had opened the deuce of spades against Generous George's contract of three no-trump. George played the 10 of spades from dummy since there was a chance that West had led from the queen-jack (in which case dummy's 10 would win the first trick). When East played the jack, George took the ace of spades because he did not want East to switch to clubs.

George could now count on winning two spades and six diamonds. If he tried to set up a club as his ninth trick, West would continue spades and would easily make two clubs, two spades, and the ace of hearts. If George tried to set up a heart as his ninth trick, the opponents might (and would) run the entire suit against him.

A lesser player would have found no way out of this dilemma. In George's case, however, the generosity for which he is famous came to his rescue.

He led a diamond to the dummy, cashed the king of spades, and returned a diamond to his own hand. Since the diamonds split 2-2, it was clear that West had no more cards in that suit. George could therefore afford to lead a spade, allowing West to take his remaining cards in that suit.

George could be reasonably sure that West had started with a four-card spade suit. After all, he had opened the bidding with one club, which he probably would not have done if he had held a five-card spade suit. Moreover, West had opened the deuce of spades, which would indicate a four-card suit unless West happened to be trying to deceive declarer. It was a little too much to expect that West had been deceptive in both the bidding and the opening lead.

George was perfectly right of course. West had started with only four spades. When he had taken his queen and nine of spades, he had to switch either to hearts or to clubs. In either case he had to let George make a king in the suit that was attacked. George could then run the rest of dummy's diamonds, making his contract.

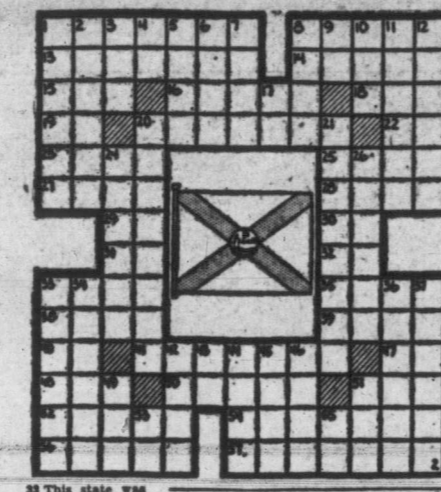

When gold or silver evening slippers begin to look shabby, renew their finish with gold or silver paint, carefully applied with a small brush.

Girl Threatened By Whistler Weds; No Such Beast, Say Cops

TAIT, La. (AP)—Pretty Jacqueline Cadow, 18, and her state trooper sweetheart, Herbert Belson, 26, were married Sunday and there was no sign of the mysterious "whistler" who reportedly threatened to prevent the wedding.

Hundreds of persons jammed Our Lady of the Holy Rosary Church for the ceremony. Scores of others stood atop the levee outside the rural church.

The couple received wedding gifts valued at $1,200 from New Orleans merchants whose spokesman said "we know of no other couple in Louisiana who have had to overcome such obstacles to be married." The gifts included a one-week honeymoon trip to Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Clifford Cadow, mother of Jacqueline, had declared that nocturnal funeral dirges were heard around their home at Paradise, about 25 miles west of New Orleans, after the engagement was announced. In addition, Mrs. Cadow said, there were reported telephone calls threatening the girl.

Sheriff Leon Vial of St. Charles Parish said an investigation indicated "that there is no whistler who is a menace" to the girl or any member of her family.

Rural Directories Now At Post Office

Directories listing names of all persons living in rural areas on Vancouver Island have been compiled by the postal department.

They are divided into the Victoria and Nanaimo directory and Comox-Alberni, and mark the first revisions for two years. There was no delay between revision and actual printing, according to postal authorities.

JOHNS-MANVILLE ROOF WITH CHARM SOOTHES SAVAGE!

There's no doubt about the charm of a Johns-Manville Asphalt Shingle Roof! The wide choice of designs and colors will blend with any style of architecture. And as for the "savage" enemies of all roofs, fire, weather and wear, J-M Asphalt Shingles stubbornly resist all three. Their first cost is low, and the years of protection they afford doubles their initial economy.

A word of warning! Never let an "unknown" or "roving" roofer tamper with your roof! Too often the work they claim to have done proves extremely expensive. Consult your J-M dealer or J-M applicator on roofing matters. He is absolutely dependable and knows where to look for trouble signs and how to remedy them.

For a free folder showing the smart designs and beautiful colors of J-M Asphalt Shingles, write Johns-Manville, 1206 Homer Street, Vancouver, or see your J-M dealer, V.I. Hardwood Floor Co.

POLICE FOLLOW NOSES; NAB THIEF WITH SCENTED PURSE

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Geraldine Arnold told police she believed it might not be too hard to trace her stolen billfold containing $20.

It wasn't. Officers arrested a 21-year-old man who works at the same restaurant as Miss Arnold and found in his pockets $18 in currency smelling highly of perfume.

Miss Arnold said she had spilled a bottle of the stuff in her purse.

New Get-Rich Craze Comes In From U.S.

City Police Keep Watch For Arrival

First it was the chain-letter scheme. Then came the Pyramid Club . . . and now the newest of the get-rich-quick crazes, called the "Home Quiz," has mushroomed from the U.S. into Canada.

A watchful eye is being kept by the authorities in Victoria for spread of the craze but Police Chief John Blackstock said he has as yet had no indication of its arrival.

The game, like the other crazes, is illegal under the lotteries section of the Criminal Code.

Police in Vancouver report thousands of people in the quiz game. Raids have been carried out on some of the clubs. No arrests have been made.

The quiz rules are much the same as those for the Pyramid clubs.

$1,000 PAYOFF

Fans say 13 weeks after a person joins, he can win $2,048, theoretically. Actually, the payoff is smaller, usually about $1,000.

To become a member of a home quiz club, says U.P. correspondent Knowlton Nash, a person pays a dollar to a secretary-treasurer.

Thirteen weeks later, the contributor gets the payoff. In each club there are 32 grand treasurers and each has 16 secretary-treasurers. Each of the latter has a party at his house entertaining 16 new members once a week.

The members pay him $1 each. Members graduate up the scale to grand treasurers, convenors and from fourth to first president. The first president is the person at the top of the list who wins the money.

The secretary-treasurers turn the dollars over to the grand treasurer at another party. Then the grand treasurers get together for a party at which they hand the money over to a president.

The president is asked a simple question, such as "How old are you?" before he is given the money. That is supposed to get the scheme around the Criminal Code.

Police say it is still against the law.

Conducts Own Case As Assize Court Opens

Tall, dark William Leo Caron, facing charges of breaking and entering and theft, conducted his own case today in Assize Court which opened before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson of Vancouver.

Caron, without counsel, pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking and entering and stealing goods from the shop of E. Jones, 1315 Government Street.

R. A. Wootton is Crown prosecutor for the Assize term. Six trials are scheduled to be heard.

Stones, Bottle, Chestnut Smash Windows In City

Windows were damaged during the week-end by a barrage of stones, a chestnut and a beer bottle.

A rock was thrown through a window in the home of F. Crocker, 1803 Belmont Avenue. The chestnut broke a window in the home of R. Thomas, 2516 Work Street.

A stone holed a window at 1826½ Government Street, Jack Leong told police.

The beer bottle broke the rear window of a car owned by C. G. Paterson, 344 St. James Street.

Strongly-Contested Damage Suit Against S.P.C.A. Opening Again

A strongly-contested damage suit which started in March, 1947, between Sydney Pickles, president of Ward Six Ratepayers' Association, and the former executive of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, is scheduled to begin all over again this month.

A new hearing for the Pickles' damage suit against Capt. James Barr, 1947 president of the S.P.C.A., and other officials who held office at that time, has been ordered for Oct. 23. Trial will be held before Mr. Justice A. M. Manson. Pickles will be represented by H. W. Davey, K.C. L. G. McKenzie will act for the S.P.C.A.

Pickles claims $9,500 in his damage suit against the S.P.C.A. for alleged malicious prosecution. The damage suit followed a charge laid against Pickles in Saanich police court in March, 1947, of neglecting to take care of four diseased sheep.

Magistrate H. C. Hall dismissed the charge against Pickles, who immediately filed his damage suit against the S.P.C.A. The case was first heard before Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in Supreme Court. Judgment was rendered in favor of the S.P.C.A.

Pickles appealed the decision to the B.C. Court of Appeals, which upheld the judgment of the lower court.

The Saanich farmer then carried his case personally to the Supreme Court of Canada. It ordered a new trial.

Liberal Executive Meets Next Month

Annual meeting off the 120-member executive of the B.C. Liberal Association will be held in Vancouver early in November.

This was announced today by officials of the association who said selection of the date of the meeting will depend on recovery of Premier Byron Johnson from injuries received last week in an automobile accident in Quebec.

Advisory council of the association will meet immediately prior to the executive meeting.

Cars Prowled

A handbag was stolen from a car owned by Mrs. A. Dobell, R.R. 2, Duncan, while it was parked at Beacon Hill Park Sunday afternoon, Police report. A car owned by D. Painton was broken into on Fisgard Street Saturday night but nothing was stolen. A hub cap was stolen from the car owned by William Law, 1335 Arm Street.

FINDS CHANGE CONFUSING

Workmen are doing such a good job of changing the face and interior of City Hall these days that one citizen got lost and demanded to know the way out.

"It's changed so much I don't know where to go or how to get out," he remarked as he sought direction.

Ald. Harold M. Diggon, chairman of the special City Hall reconstruction committee will no doubt be pleased that changes are so effective.

Meetings On Finances Of Saanich Ward

First of a series of meetings to divide the assets and liabilities between the seceding Ward Six area and Saanich municipality, opened today at the Municipal Hall.

William Crouch, former reeve, is presiding. K. R. Genn, former councillor, is representing Saanich and Lorne Thompson the seceding area.

Results of the latest petition among ratepayers in the seceding area has shown 71 per cent in favor of the break-away. The Municipal Act only requires a 51 per cent majority.

The 20 canvassers, credited with doing a fine job, got 600 signatures of property holders out of a possible 902. There were only 32 persons who refused to sign.

September Sun Shone 44 Hours More Than Usual

The sun worked overtime in September to supply Victorians with a total of 253 hours of sunshine, 44 hours above normal for the month.

Rainfall during the month was considerably below normal with 43 inches falling, or 1.63 inches below the average.

Mean temperature for the month was 57 degrees, which is normal. The high recorded for the month was 75 degrees on the 21st, while the low was 42 degrees on the 28th.

Total amount of rainfall from Jan. 1 to Sept. 30 was 17.39 inches, or 2.26 inches above normal.

Victoria's City Manager Takes Over Post At Hall

City Hall today greeted Victoria's first city manager when Cecil C. Wyatt, former clerk-Comptroller-treasurer of Kingston, Ontario, took over the reigns of his office.

"I feel almost as good as the weather," he laughed, referring to the cold which he contracted on his way west.

"My reactions are very favorable," he said of his first day on the job.

Mr. Wyatt met with the full council in the mayor's office in the forenoon and with heads of departments in the afternoon.

"It was just to enable us to meet one another and get together," he said of the meetings.

Decisions Held In Appeals From City Assessments

Decisions were reserved in the hearing of three appeals from assessment at the opening of the court of revision on the assessment roll in City Council Chambers this morning.

Three residents appealed assessments on their homes.

Among 29 appeals to be heard is that of the E.C. Power Commission, which is slated for Oct. 19. A. G. Joyce, assessor-collector said.

Members of the court of revision are Alderman Duncan McTavish, chairman, and Aldermen Harold Diggon, Mrs. Margaret Christie, William Pinfold and Percy Scurreh.

Appeals Conviction

The appeal of Raymond Charles McInnis of Vancouver, against a conviction of conspiring to steal certain articles out of the stock of Edward Lipsett Co., opened before the B.C. Court of Appeals today.

McInnis was sentenced to one year's imprisonment with hard labor by a Vancouver lower court.

STEAL TOILETS

Two complete toilets were stolen from Gordon Head camp by a man driving an old-model coupe, Saanich police reported Sunday.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

A Saturday evening collision on the Island Highway, north of Parsons Bridge, did $75 damage to a car driven by Edward Schmidt, Clague Avenue, Duncan. R.C.M.P. highway patrol officers said the other car was driven by Richard A. Peterson, Sooke Road. There was no damage to this car.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

A six-month suspended sentence was imposed in city court today by Magistrate H. C. Hall on a man charged under the Mores By-law as the result of telephone conversations to women advertising for baby sitters.

Magistrate Hall warned accused to desist from this practice and placed him on bond in the sum of $500 to be of good behaviour for six months.

Plastic Hostess Set Serves Duo Purpose

By PENNY SAVER

Everything, these fast-paced days, is being made to make life easier for the good woman of the home. Take, for instance, a little plastic number which sells under the name of an all-purpose hostess set. The set is comprised of a four-sectioned tray and a deep inverted plastic bowl that serves as a lid or bowl.

When using the hostess tray, as a tray, you'll find ample space in each section to stack sandwiches, pickles and the like. By reversing the tray it takes the form of a base for your newly-iced chocolate cake. As for the lid, its versatility is not to be sneezed at, either. When not being used as a protection against inquiring fingers that oft find their way to the cake's icing, it cleaning. Oh yes, the price on them is 15 pennies a pair!

Now that we have the subject of trays on the agenda, I might say a few words about the handy little tray purses. The word tray is attached to the English leather purses because they actually do have a tray compartment that slides from the lid of the purse, enabling you to see at a glance the amount of shekels you have, or have not! In the three-by-three-inch size, the purses have been made up in colors of green, tan and plaid, and are priced from $1.35 up.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Mother Of Three Girls Sleepless With Anxiety About The Youngest's Crippled Leg

Dear Mary Haworth: I have a problem on which I need help so badly that I am willing to tell the whole story about it if necessary. I have two lovely, healthy girls, ages 11 and nine years; and also I have a third daughter now three and a half years old. It is she I must tell you about.

Ruthie was born with a defective left leg. It is about four inches shorter than the other leg now; a bone is missing from kneecap to ankle, and there is no ankle action. Her left foot just points downward, so that she has to stand on her toes instead of the sole of her foot. And with so many things wrong, it seems that nothing can be done for the leg.

Therefore the problem facing me is: Should I continue to let her wear a built up shoe and a brace, as she has been doing? Or should I decide upon amputation now while she is young, so that she may learn to use an artificial limb while growing up? As it is her future that is concerned, and not mine alone, I spend sleepless nights trying to find the right solution.

Ruthie has more zest and determination than all the rest of us put together. Do you think I should wait until she's old enough to decide what she'd rather do?—and in the meantime hope for a miracle that medical science might find in the future? Please answer soon.

K. P.

SPARE THE CHILD ANXIETY NEUROSIS

Dear K. P.: As I get the picture, you and Ruthie need first hand specialist help with two problems, the one being her defective limb and the other being your neurotic chagrin about it. The physical handicap, such as it is, may be taken in stride without detriment to her personality, and without depriving her of average success in human relations, provided she doesn't absorb from you an anxiety neurosis about herself. However, at this writing it seems you are on the verge of doing such damage to her.

I have reviewed your letter with the learned head of a first-class diagnostic clinic for private patients—the kind of medical set-up that "treats the whole man," to promote balanced health of mind and body. This fine doctor echoed my thought (as stated above), by saying immediately that your emotional attitude toward Ruthie's congenital defect is the major problem calling for treatment at this time.

SEE NO EXCUSE FOR AMPUTATION

To be perfectly frank, I experienced a shock reaction to your idea of amputating the limb, as a supposed contribution to the child's well being. The suggestion indicates that you are primarily and almost morbidly appearance-conscious about Ruth's body. Apparently you think an artificial limb, well maneuvered might be more attractive than the stunted member. In my opinion, the inconvenience would be greater; and I think the major ordeal of amputation would be inexcusable, if vanity were the sole justification.

My consultant also opposes amputation, except as an emergency measure to protect life itself, when malignant infection threatens. And he is confident that you will abandon the idea when your anxious confusion has been relieved with the help of good psychological and orthopedic counsel.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her through The Times.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRID

Every young mother picks up her baby with some fear and anxiety. It seems so frail, so easy to injure, that she handles it gingerly.

Also, she is influenced by that hangover of other days the idea that babies should be left alone if they are comfortable, warm, and dry. We are passing rather quickly out of the era when that was in vogue and mothers should become familiar with the newer attitudes toward baby handling.

An Inexperienced Mother writes: "I enjoy your column and it has been very helpful to me and to other young mothers I know. What do you do when people insist upon picking up your infant, walking the floor with it, or passing it around to other persons?"

"Do you think an infant should be picked up every time it whimpers or fusses?"

"We new mothers try to be tactful and unselfish with our babies, but people disregard our wishes when it comes to handling. We would appreciate it if you would give us some advice and let us know if we are right or wrong in thinking babies are not playthings for people to pass around and then hand back to us when they go home?"

You are both right and wrong and I'll explain why. If the person picks up the baby when it is crying and tries to soothe it that is an admirable thing to do. A baby might do a little trivial fussing without needing any particular attention; sometimes babies fuss always before they fall asleep. But, if the fussing is lengthy, or if the baby has just been fed and may be bothered by gas, then it is wise to pick it up, soothe it, pat its back, change its position and that will usually do the trick.

If adults pick up a baby just because they like babies and want to express their maternal emotions toward it, then this is another thing. It might not hurt the baby at all, he likes attention and should know that people enjoy him. But to pick him up, disturb his rest, pass him about from one person to another, that is not being thoughtful of the baby. He might prefer to be quiet. How does anyone know if she arbitrarily lifts him out of his nice crib and walks him around?

In such case, you might tactfully take the baby away from the baby-handling female and say gently, "I believe it is time for him to rest, so we had better give him a chance." Then you offend no one and protect the baby from unnecessary and fatiguing attentions.

Our leaflet No. 5, "The First Six Weeks," goes into this in greater detail and may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

ONION-CHEESE PIE

One-half cup melted shortening (part butter), 1½ cups fine unsalted cracker crumbs, 2½ cups thinly-sliced onions, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ cups milk, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 cups grated medium Cheddar cheese.

Mix melted shortening with cracker crumbs and press into a greased, deep, nine-inch pie plate. Fry onions in butter until tender, then place on crumb crust. Scald milk and slowly add to the slightly-beaten eggs, stirring constantly. Add salt, pepper and grated cheese. Mix well and pour over onions. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., until a silver knife inserted in the centre comes out clean, about 40 to 45 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Autumn Setting The Frame For Government House Scene

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Soft glow of an early-October sun outlined windows in the formal drawing room at Government House this morning, touched arrangements of flowers on the grand piano and on the side tables and deepened the tones of their brilliant autumn colorings.

There was an air of excitement in the room, too, as cabinet members, their wives, aides-de-camp in gold-braided uniforms, immediate members of the Wallace family and close friends gathered for induction ceremonies of a new lieutenant-governor of the province.

Mrs. Wallace entered the room just before the ceremonies commenced. She was accompanied by Miss Ruth MacLean. And promptly at 11.30 Capt. J. G. Cromack announced Mr. Clarence Wallace, and the swearing-in ceremonies commenced.

Morning coats and grey striped trousers were worn by all male members of the party not in uniform.

Mrs. Wallace was smart in a black velvet suit with white feather pillbox touched with brilliant studs and complementing white half-veil. She wore a four-strand choker of pearls, conservative black suede pumps and white gloves.

Mrs. David Wallace and Mrs. Richard Wallace, daughters-in-law of the new Lieutenant-Governor and his wife, had also chosen black for the morning ceremonies.

Mrs. Richard Wallace in a black ribbed silk suit banded in black velvet, and black velvet poke bonnet trimmed with soft pink curled ostrich plume; Mrs. David Wallace's black silk faille suit complemented with stone martin furs and powder blue gloves. She wore a small black velvet hat.

Mrs. Hubert A. Wallace, Victoria, chose a midnight blue satin suit, with sable furs, small black hat and white gloves, and Mrs. S. S. McKee was in a muted plum-toned suit with blue feather cloche trimmed with curled feathers, in plum tones. She complemented her assembly with sable furs.

Following the ceremony, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Wallace entertained at their first luncheon party in Government House. Covers were laid for 20.

New Lieutenant-Governor To Attend Premiere, Ball

In his first official appearance after induction ceremonies at Government House this morning, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Wallace will tomorrow evening attend opening of the North American premiere of the J. Arthur Rank production, "Prelude To Fame," being shown in Vancouver in aid of the Red Feather campaign.

His Honor, who will officiate at the opening, will be accompanied by Major Lyle Fraser as aide-de-camp and Mrs. Wallace will be accompanied by Miss Ruth MacLean.

Prior to the premiere, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ronald Graham will entertain at dinner in honor of the new Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Wallace.

Next Friday evening His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Wallace will attend the annual military ball of the active and reserve forces of the three services in Seaford Armories in the mainland city. Aide-de-camp on this occasion will be Major Hugh Allan, O.B.E. Miss Ruth MacLean will accompany Mrs. Wallace.

Tea-Hour Party Today Honors Visiting Wives

Mrs. William T. Straith, wife of British Columbia's Minister of Education, was hostess at the tea hour this afternoon in the Parliament Buildings to honor wives of members of the Canadian Education Association, meeting in Victoria at present.

Guests were received in the rotunda of the Provincial Library and taken on a tour of the Parliament Buildings. Afternoon tea was served in the Coalition Room.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. H. L. Smith and Mrs. H. O. English and assisting in serving were Mrs. J. F. K. English and Mrs. H. P. Johns. Receiving guests with Mrs. Straith were Mrs. H. L. Campbell and Mrs. E. T. Fairley.

Yesterday evening members of the Greater Victoria School Board entertained at an informal reception in the lower lounge at the Empress Hotel to honor directors of the Canadian Education Association and their wives. Major Robert Green, chairman of the school board, and Mrs. Green received. Mrs. W. W. McGill, chairman of the hospitality committee was in charge of arrangements. Miss Sheila Bate and Mr. Arthur Stringer were guest artists.

Mr. Leslie Davies left Victoria today by plane on a business trip to Toronto, Montreal and New York. While in the east he will attend a World Series baseball game in Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood B. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. John Abell have returned from Vancouver where they went to attend ceremonies in which Mr. Marshall and Mr. Abell were admitted to the Bar. Also attending the ceremonies from Victoria were Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Marshall Sr. of Redlands, Calif., and Quilicum Beach, Mr. David Sloan and Mr. J. Alexander Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wootton returned to their Victoria Drive home last week-end following a trip to Washington, D.C., where they attended the 32nd annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association, convened with the United States Bar Association at their special invitation, in the national capital. En route home, Mr. and Mrs. Wootton spent a brief holiday in New York.

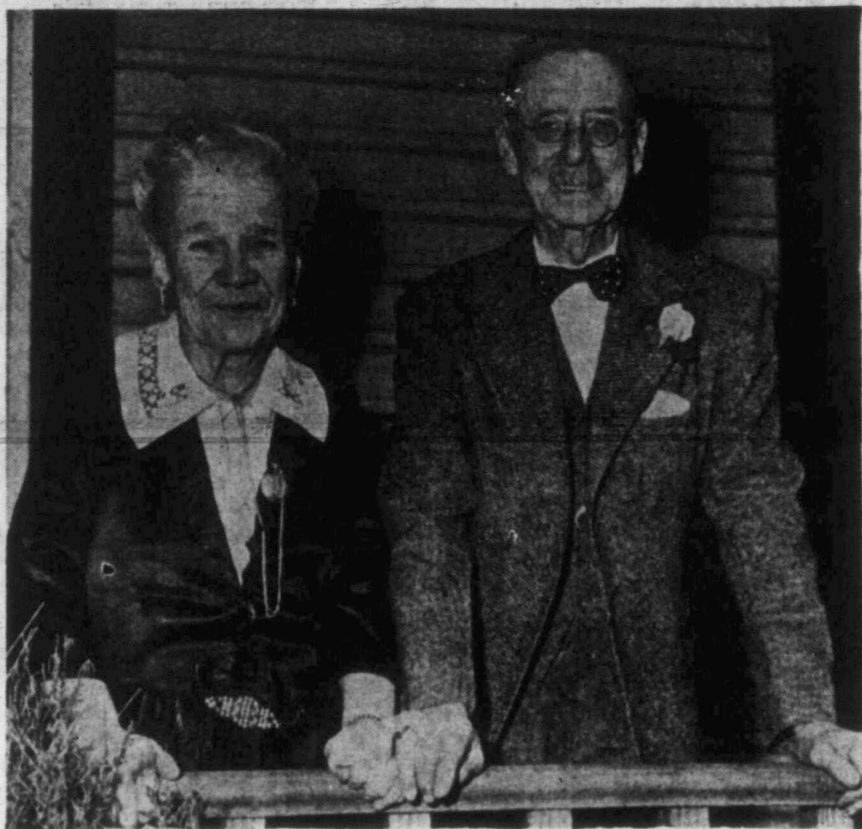

Mrs. W. C. Nichol has returned to her St. Charles Street home after spending the summer months abroad. Accompanied by her grandson, Christopher Main-guy, Mrs. Nichol traveled extensively in England and attended the Edinburgh Musical Festival. She and her grandson sailed for Canada aboard the Empress of Scotland, Christopher returning to school in Lakefield, Ont., and Mrs. Nichol after a visit in Montreal, resuming her journey to the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Weatherwax and their son, Mr. William John Weatherwax, arrived from Costa Mesa, Calif., Sunday for the latter's wedding this week to Miss Kathleen "Bunt" Speirs. They are guests of Capt. and Mrs. Alex Speirs, 471 Nelson Street.

Prior to commencement exercises at St. Ann's Academy last Friday, a "cock party" honoring senior matriculation graduates was held at Loretto Hall. Those present included Misses Carroll Goetz, Moya Martin, Sheila Paterson, Alyce Welcker, Messrs. Marvin Fallis, Don Martin, Jim Trimble and Des Cavin.

Mrs. Christopher Reid, formerly of this city, has come from Keowna to spend two weeks in Victoria. At present she is guest of Dr. and Mrs. T. W. Walker, Cadboro Bay Road. Her son, Mr. Robert Hetherington, who graduated in medicine from Toronto University, and was awarded the Cody gold medal, is continuing his studies at Queens College, Oxford, on a Rhodes Scholarship. He arrived in Liverpool aboard the Empress of Scotland Saturday.

Vancouver guests at the wedding of Miss Anne Damery and Mr. Harvey Lindholm Saturday evening included the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Lindholm, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Christie, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Barry, Mr. and Mrs. T. Rule, Mrs. F. Rule, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Vivian and Messrs. Ward Lindholm, Al MacLean, Harold Greening and Nick Boychuk. Miss Margaret Couits attended from Victoria.

Celebrate 60 Years Of Marriage Wednesday

At home to the host of friends they have made during their 30 years in this city will be Mr. and Mrs. James Nuttall, 424 Williams Street, on Wednesday from 2 to 5, and from 7 to 10. The occasion will mark 60 years of marriage for the happy pair, who will cut a three-tier anniversary cake. The Nuttalls, wed in St. Thomas'

Church, Leigh, Lancashire, Eng., lived in Saskatoon for some time before coming to Victoria. They have a daughter, Mrs. F. Ball; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. James Nuttall, and two sons, William and Harold, all in Victoria. They have 15 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren.

ONE WOMAN ELIGIBLE FOR ARMY

WINNIPEG (CP)—What about a woman general?

Two directors of the Imperial Defence College visiting here shied away from commenting when asked whether women would ever be eligible for the commonwealth military staff college.

J. G. Ward, civilian member of the directing staff, was a bit more voluble on the subject, but suggested the field for women would be highly limited.

"There is probably just about one woman in the military field in England who would be admissible," said Mr. Ward. "That is the brigadier of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps."

Anne Damery, H. Lindholm Married In Port Alberni

First United Church in Port Alberni was decorated in mauve and white with Michaelmas daisies and other fall blooms for the ceremony uniting a graduate of Royal Jubilee Hospital class of '47, Anne Sarah Damery, and a graduate of University of British Columbia in commerce and arts, Harvey Raymond Lindholm.

After a honeymoon on the island, Mr. and Mrs. Lindholm will cross to Vancouver to make their home.

Rev. W. Nixon heard the wedding vows of the daughter of Mrs. Anne Damery, Port Alberni, and the late Albert Damery, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ewald Lindholm, Vancouver, Saturday at 7.30.

Escorted by her brother, Albert Damery, the bride was gown in traditional slipper satin, fashioned with front paneling of applique leaves and seed pearls. On classic lines the dress swirled into a full train, and was misted with a long, billowing veil.

The bride carried a crescent of calla lilies, white carnations and white heather. She wore a gold scrollwork locket, her father's wedding gift to her mother.

Crescent bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums were carried by matron of honor, Mrs. Jessie Sparshott, sister of the bride.

Trinity College Chapel Rites Of Wide Interest

Vancouver Island shares interest with Toronto in the marriage solemnized there by Dr. R. S. Seeley, provost of Trinity College, in the college chapel, Saturday afternoon.

Principals were Miss Stella Winifred Davidson, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, P.Q., daughter of Mrs. George D. Burns, Duncan, B.C., and Charles Ian Passman Tate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lionel Tate, Toronto.

Pink tones of the floral decorations created the setting for the bride in her original model gown fashioned of blush pink satin. Medici collar and long sleeves appointed the slender bodice; the full skirt ended in train.

The same delicate coloring was repeated in her illusion veil, and she carried pale pink gladioli and sweetheart roses.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lieut. (Dr.) G. Huntley Davidson, R.C.N., the bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frederick L. Clairmonte, Ottawa. The honor attendant was gown in deep aster rose.

Identical aquamarine dresses were worn by bridesmaids, Miss Sheila Tate, sister of the groom, Miss Barbara Lawson, Montreal, and Miss Margaret Schwartz, Edmonton. All carried bouquets of cream gladioli and sweetheart roses.

Peter N. Pangman served as groomsmen. Ushers were Ian Shepherd, Peter Allan, Jack Featherstone, Jack Goering, all of Toronto. Mrs. John D. MacLean sang "O Lord Most Holy," accompanied by John Sidgwick, organist.

A reception was held at Glendale Manor where Lt. Col. Charles O'Connor-Fenton, Montreal, proposed the bride's toast. For a motoring trip to Quebec City and through eastern United States the bride donned a navy silk print dress with accessories en tone.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate will live in Toronto.

American Beauty Velvet Gowns Foil For Rose Mair, Wed In White Satin

American Beauty tones in the formal velvet gowns worn by her two attendants created an effective color foil for a bride in traditional white satin. Miss Rose Cecelia Mair, when she married Leslie Arthur Vivian in a double-ring service Saturday at 8.

Lighted candles, baskets of multi-hued gladioli and other fall flowers formed the setting for the ceremony conducted by Rev. J. L. McLean in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Mair, 3809 Carey Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Vivian, 1131 McKenzie Street.

A coronet set with seed pearls and trumpet beads crowned the bride's full-length veil, hand-embroidered with seed pearls. The graceful wedding dress, designed with self-covered buttons closing the moulded bodice at back, had long slender sleeves pointed over the wrists, and very full skirt in period mode.

The bride held a prayer book mounted with a mauve orchid. Mr. Mair gave his daughter in marriage.

Matron of honor, Mrs. A. R.

Johnson, and bridesmaid Miss Irene Scott, were alike in American Beauty velvet fashioned with snug bodices, draped skirts and off-shoulder necklines. Their long gloves were of rose net, and they wore American Beauty-toned flowers on velvet bandeaux in their hair. Both held gladioli crescents repeating the same deep hue.

Charles Vivian was best man for his brother. Ushering were Guy Crowther and William Rhodes. Miss Kathleen Paulin sang "Till Walk Beside You," and Mr. Warren was organist.

John Norrington gave the toast to the bride at a reception in Terry's Rose Room. Three-tier cake was topped with a miniature cupid and encircled with tulle. Candelsticks completed the decor.

Mrs. Mair, in a dove grey frock, navy accessories and silver fox cape, with Mrs. Vivian, wearing taupe afternoon dress with accessories en tone and silver fox furs, assisted in receiving guests.

After a wedding trip to Vancouver, Spokane and other points south, Mr. and Mrs. Vivian will return to their new home at 1438 Wende Road. The bride traveled in an attractive sand suit, navy accessories and navy blue topcoat, with white fox collar. She wore her orchid en corsage.

Family In Scotland Sends Best Wishes To Newlyweds

Telegrams were read from members of the groom's family in Scotland at a reception following the marriage of Marion Alice McCulloch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. McCulloch, 2117 Belmont Avenue, and Hugh Campbell Small, son of James Small, Glasgow, and the late Mrs. Small.

Belmont United Church was decorated with profusions of brilliant fall flowers for the Saturday evening service conducted by Rev. C. R. McGillivray.

Scarlet roses in a cascade bouquet were carried by the bride, popular staff member of South Park School. Her white satin gown had rounded neckline accented with a deep cowl of embroidered net, long sheathed sleeves, and full skirt ruffled at the hemline with Chantilly lace and caught with three large bows. Mr. McCulloch gave his daughter in marriage.

Pale green velvety over tail-feta created the identical bouffant gowns worn by Miss Arline McCulloch, maid of honor, and Miss Margaret McCulloch, bridesmaid. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow roses, and wore floral headresses.

Keith McCulloch, brother of the bride, was best man. Cousin of the bride, Norman McCulloch, ushered with William Allan. While the register was signed, Mrs. M. Allan sang "O Perfect Love," with Miss E. Ranson at the organ.

Mr. and Mrs. McCulloch stood in the reception line with the newlyweds, before a fireplace banked with colorful flowers at Windermere Hotel. Tall candles were placed on either side of a three-tier cake centering the bride's table. Hugh McCulloch gave the toast to his niece.

After a trip by automobile through British Columbia and in United States, the couple will return to make their home at 1810 Hollywood Crescent.

Saladin, the ruler of the Saracens, felt that he had a duty to perform. As leader of his faith, he believed that the greatest thing he could do would be to drive the Christians out of Palestine.

Fighting for their own religion, the Crusaders had captured several leading cities, including Jerusalem. Now, many years later, Saladin tried to get those cities back.

Fierce battles came about. Saladin and his soldiers laid siege to city after city. Acre was taken, also Nazareth, Beirut and Sidon.

Saladin had a deep feeling of religion. Eight times a day he prayed for Mohammedan victory. After winning a number of battles, he declared:

"It is in answer to my prayers that Allah has given strength to my arm."

Saladin needed strength for his next test. That was the siege of Jerusalem.

On a September day, the Mohammedans appeared near the walls of the Holy City. Five days later they went away, or at least it seemed that this had happened. The fact was that Saladin's troops left one evening but appeared on another side of Jerusalem a bit later.

Tunnels were dug under the walls, and soon it became clear that the city must fall. The surrender took place less than two weeks after the siege started.

At this point, there came a great question. How would Saladin treat the people of Jerusalem? He knew something about history, and history told what had happened when the city had been captured by the Crusaders 88 years before. Thousands of the inhabitants had been slaughtered.

Would Saladin act in the same way? That might have been expected. Some rules of warfare were more cruel in those days than they are now. (Notice that I say "some").

What would this Mohammedan leader do? Would he take a hard revenge?

The Christians in Jerusalem trembled, but strange things happened. Saladin agreed to let each person go free who paid a ransom of moderate size. He could have seized all the gold in the city, but he let thousands carry away money and other valuables.

New Fields For Radium 60

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian scientists have discovered a better and cheaper substitute for radium for use in industrial and medical radiology, says Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, president of the National Research Council.

The new substance is cobalt 60, a radioisotope developed by N.R.C. scientists in the giant NRX atomic pile at Chalk River, Ontario.

Cobalt 60 has a higher specific gravity than can be obtained anywhere else in the world and gamma ray activity many times the strength of the same amount of radium. With such a concentration of radio-activity in so small a unit, radiologists can make sharper pictures than ever before.

Fear Thousands Of Prisoners Slain By Reds Just Before Retreat From Seoul; Find Bodies

By O. H. P. KING

SEOUL (AP) — Discovery of mass graves today raised fears that the Communists may have murdered as many as 2,000 political prisoners in a single district of Seoul just before they retreated.

I saw the bodies of 27 men and women, each with bound hands, in trenches the South Korean army dug in the first days of the war but never used.

More than 100 other bodies were reported found in the area. "People here say 2,000 residents of this district alone were taken to Red police headquarters," said Mayor Lee Ki-poon.

"When the fall of Seoul became apparent, these people were removed from jails and none has since been seen alive.

"They have been either killed or taken north."

The mayor said the victims were relatives of persons sought by the Communist police members of the Korean Republic's national police, and youths who had tried to evade Red military conscription.

Mourning relatives swarmed to the mass graves, seeking to identify husbands, wives or sons.

One man said he had found the body of his pregnant wife with one breast and one ear hacked off.

This man, a cannery worker, said he had gone into hiding to escape Red conscription and the

FACTS ABOUT CONTEMPORARIES

Witty, Revealing Who's Who Seen Among Best Sellers Of France

By ERNEST SANDFORD

PARIS (Reuter)—A witty, intensely Gallic Who's Who is among the bestsellers in Paris bookstalls. Published by France's most-sued magazine, "Crapouillot," it is a dictionary of contemporaries—as others see them. Secret of the popularity of this book of biographies is perhaps to be found in the "register of claims" at the end of the recently published second volume. The "register" lists the protests and threats of libel actions made by pilloried personalities against the publishers.

Intimate data is a feature of the sketches of great contemporaries contained in the two volumes which have so far appeared.

Wherever possible, the dictionary gives the heights and weights of France's famous men and women, their hobbies and "peculiarities," their greatest failures and successes, even the names of their pets.

Of French President Vincent Auriol, for example, it writes: "For 40 years he has risen at 6 and made his own coffee."

"Crapouillot" takes its name from a heavy French mortar used in the First World War that was made famous for its noise and panic-spreading effect.

Many of the literary personalities whose biographies are given are themselves the authors of other biographies in the book. As a result there are not only merciless attacks in some of the biographies but also memorable compliments and expert literary, artistic and political criticisms.

In judging the former Marshal of France, Philippe Petain, 95-year-old prisoner on the Ile-de-Re condemned for heading the Vichy government during the Second World War, the biographer excuses his attitude to the Germans on the grounds of his great age.

When France was prostrate, he adds, "Petain was her shield and De Gaulle her sword."

Extracts from pen sketches that have set thousands of readers chuckling or gasping include: Jean Anouilh: "Has known hard times, but succeeded in not being a journalist."

Josephine Baker: "Pets—two dogs, two parrots, one ferret, two monkeys, a hundred birds, plus cows, pigs and horses." Albert Camus: "The most important living French writer, with Gide."

Maurice Chevalier: "Thirty years of success, thanks to almost daily efforts towards perfection. A worrier, seeks 'serenity'."

General Charles de Gaulle: "Whether he returns as head of the country or not, De Gaulle will remain the hero wrapped in mystery whose voice from afar brought hope of sunny days to millions of French people in anguish during the dark years."

Sacha Guitry: "Does not hide his vanity. Wears it like a crown. But it has made him many enemies."

General de Lattre de Tassigny: "Motto—do not put up with it. Introduced serviettes into French barracks and insisted officers have clean teeth and nails."

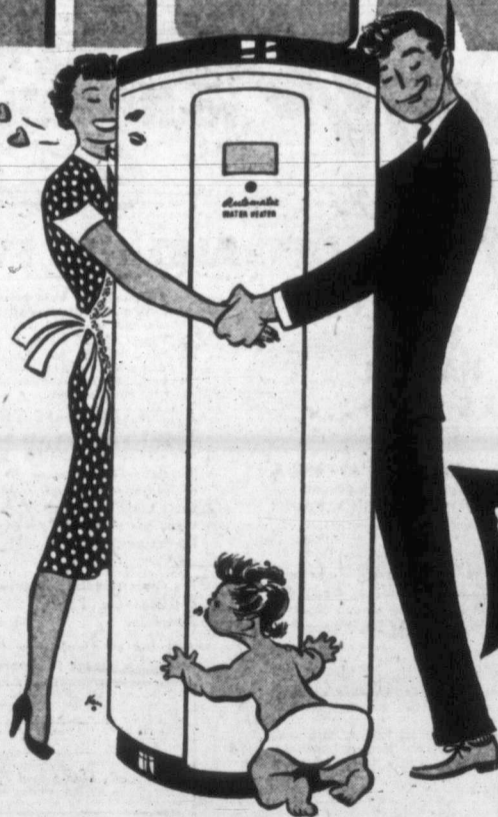

The publishers of the dictionary of contemporaries claim for their "Who's Who" that it is "an indispensable work of reference on the desk of every well-informed Frenchman."

Shark Catching Bringing Money To Ireland Coast

Oil At Peak £50 A Ton; Market Sought For Baskers' Skins In Great Britain

GALWAY, Ireland (UP)—A tiny dot high up on the cliffs overlooking the Atlantic is one of the key men in western Ireland's shark-catching industry.

He gazes across the waves and at the rowing boats waiting for his warning.

The silence is shattered suddenly as the cliff watcher shrieks: "Hi-yi-yi. There they go."

He points towards the shoal of sharks and guides the boatmen with signs until they are close enough to deal with the fish themselves.

The 30-foot monsters provide oil, which already has sold for up to £50 a ton, and carcasses which are sold for the manufacture of fish meal.

The shark-hunters are now seeking two further markets, one among the Chinese-Americans for shark fins for soup, and another in Britain for baskers' skins.

HUNTERS SATISFIED

The fishing industry is a three-year-old experiment centred on Achill Island and headed by enterprising Joe Sweeney, who traps the sharks in nets.

His sharkmen earn an average of £8 a week during the season, which extends from April to July, and would not swap jobs with anybody in Ireland.

Looking happily over the wide stretch of ocean, Joe said he first thought of the business when he saw the damage done to his salmon nets five years ago by the two-ton monsters that nose their way up Ireland's western coast in the warm current of the Gulf Stream.

"At first, I suppose, I was out for vengeance," Joe admitted. "I took a rifle up the cliff over the salmon nets and as the big fellows came around I let them have it with soft-nosed .303 bullets. I killed 25 that day.

RISKY WORK

It struck him then that Scotland had a booming shark industry, and that Ireland should have one also.

Nets 300 to 360 feet long and 20 feet deep are used to catch the fish. The nets are anchored to the coast and carried on cork floats across the habitual course of the baskers.

It's risky work pulling in the powerful sharks. Occasionally, when the currachs—local-made boats with little weight—approach too close they receive a staggering blow from the shark's tail which sends the craft spinning.

Last year the men handled 30 sharks a week.

Steel companies in the U.S. buy about $10,000 worth of platinum and thousands of dollars worth of diamonds per year for industrial uses.

ALGERIAN SAYS HE IS 120

PARIS (Reuter)—Bereska Moktar, an Algerian who claims to be 120 years old, was granted an old-age pension at the week-end. Moktar says he joined the French army in 1848, fought in the Crimean War, helped defend Paris against the Prussians in 1871, took part in the Malagasy Campaign and retired at the beginning of the century. Moktar is blind and nearly deaf, but full of old soldier's tales.

Casualty Beats Telegram Home

CROSSVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Willard Swing Jr. opened a telegram delivered to the family home in nearby Westel.

The army message said Willard Swing Jr., 20, had been slightly wounded in action in Korea, but later had been returned to duty.

The telegram was true, but during the intervening seven days, young Swing had been flown home because of the death of his father, beating the telegram.

Ex-Ontarion Runs Store 300 Miles From Railway

WOLLASTON LAKE, Sask. (CP)—Edward Melville used to be one of those city fellows—Toronto was his home—but now he is the manager of a "country store." He likes the change.

His store is practically "out of this world." It is on the shore of Wollaston Lake, 370 air miles north of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan's northernmost city. The nearest highway or railway is 300 miles away.

About 100 families of Chipewyan Indians, metis and whites depend on the Saskatchewan government trading company store for their supplies. Melville provides them with everything from a baby's bottle to steel traps. Fresh fruits and vegetables are brought in by plane.

He has become versatile—and mighty busy. Besides his store duties, he issues trapping and fishing licenses, runs the post office, acts as Saskatchewan Government's "Airways" agent, operates a first-aid station, buys furs for the Saskatchewan fur marketing service and operates the resources department radio.

In his "off" hours he acts as adviser, letter-writer and interpreter for the Indians and metis and keeps them informed on coming church services.

It's a long way from Yonge Street and its rush, but he has the odd visitor. This summer U.S. tourists discovered the place. Melville supplied them with canoes, complete outfit, and a guide—and good fishing.

The word bungalow is of Indian origin, from the Bengalese "banga."

CHIROPRACTIC FOR HEALTH ALLERGIES

An allergy is a condition of unusual or exaggerated susceptibility to a substance which is harmless in similar amounts to the majority of people. It has been discovered that an allergic condition can be the factor behind many respiratory ailments such as Hay Fever, Bronchial Asthma, etc.

Some of the substances that set up inflammatory processes in the respiratory tract are met with daily, such as dust, pollen, feathers, etc. The question of importance in an allergy is why these substances set up such inflammatory conditions in certain people. We know that the delicate membranes of the nose, throat and bronchials depend upon an adequate nerve supply from the brain to function properly. If these tissues are inflamed, and excessively sensitive to outside factors, the spinal column should be examined. Chiropractors point out that, in many cases of allergy, a misaligned vertebra in the spine is causing pressure on the nerve tracts supplying the respiratory system, thus throwing its delicate membranes into a state of irritation. It is easy to understand how outside irritants such as pollen, dust, feathers, and so on, can set up inflammation in unhealthy tissues.

If you are suffering from an allergy, it would be wise to have your spine examined. Let your Chiropractor scientifically locate and adjust the vertebra causing the pressure. This will restore the respiratory membranes to normal activity, and such conditions as Hay Fever and Bronchial Asthma will in most cases disappear.

Latest Machines Give New Look To Sidewalks

'Restoring Natural Lustre' Is Business Of New York Firm; Branch Out Abroad

NEW YORK (AP)—The well-groomed city street this year is wearing sidewalks scientifically cleaned "right down to the pores."

This is the word from Louis Schwartz, who has put the scrubbing of sidewalks on a mechanized basis in New York City and is being invited to do the same in other parts of the United States.

Schwartz heads a young firm called Sidewalk Sanitation Service, which has "restored the natural lustre" of sidewalks for various neatness-conscious hotels and stores along Fifth and Park avenues.

"We've done so well," says Schwartz, "people in eight or 10 other cities, all the way to California and including Havana, Cuba, are negotiating now for franchises."

"The trouble with people who cleaned sidewalks before was that they didn't have the equipment to get down to the pores. Also, they swept the stuff into the gutter and then a wind would blow it back. We leave nothing in the gutter."

The Schwartz operation involves three steps. After an investigation, Sidewalk Sanitation Service men go out with steam hoses blowing a chemical compound and "completely remove" all gum, stains and debris.

In this process, Schwartz says, "We bring back the sidewalk's original face."

Gum is the worst troublemaker and has to be removed from the pores.

The durability of stains varies. Something with an oil base, such as perfume, if dropped on a sidewalk, will leave a stain for months. A gum stain, if left alone, will last half a year. A whisky stain is good for more than a week.

Step two, like step one, is carried out after midnight, when there is a minimum of pedestrian traffic. In this process, Schwartz workers assault sidewalks with two-ton, three-wheeled mechanical brooms which spray, wash and scrub all at once.

The third step involves a "daytime patrol service" in which Schwartz men, attired neatly in blue and white uniforms, work over sidewalks with hand-operated machines which look like overgrown carpet sweepers.

Schwartz is 33, tall, serious, well-groomed. He was an U.S. Air Force navigator during the war and afterward manufactured sweaters. But one night, returning home late, he rode down Fifth Avenue and noticed porters cleaning sidewalks with hand brooms.

So, he went into business.

Song Writer Makes Atlantic Flight

NEW YORK (AP)—Song writer Max Conrad landed his light plane at Reykjavik, Iceland, at 9:45 a.m. E.D.T. today, completing the second lap of a leisurely return trans-Atlantic flight.

He flew to Europe in the same plane a few weeks ago to see his wife and children in Geneva, Switzerland.

New Efforts To Save Bushmen

WINDHOEK, South Africa (CP)—A reserve may be proclaimed to save the Bushmen—South Africa's vanishing race—from extinction.

Col. P. I. Hoogenhout, native administrator, said a two-man commission, consisting of Professor F. J. Schoeman and Major J. W. Naude, a former police officer, now in the Kalahari desert investigating means of preserving the Bushmen.

"They are scattered in South-west Africa over an area of about 60,000 square miles, most of which is inaccessible, unknown and largely uninhabited."

They migrate with the wild animals, following the lightning, which, to them, indicates rain and, therefore, water and good hunting.

The idea of a reserve is not so much to fence the Bushmen in as to keep their traditional enemies—the Hereros and Ovambo tribesmen—out. The Hereros and Ovambos rate the Bushmen no higher than a wild animal.

They are, however, not the only threat of extinction to the Bushmen. They are decimating themselves by child murder, a ruthless pruning of their decreasing numbers in order that the few may continue to exist.

Natal Searchers Look For Relics Of Stone Age

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa (CP)—A wave of interest in archeology is sweeping Natal. Ever since the Natal branch of the South African Archeological Association was formed some months ago in Pietermaritzburg, hundreds of Stone Age implements have been found, and several expeditions have yielded interesting data on early man.

The latest discovery consists of two sets of rock painting near the Isandhlwana Mountain in the Dundee area drawn by the immediate descendants of Stone Age man.

The party, led by Prof. O. Davies of the University of Natal, and D. Harland-Bowden, inspector of mines and chairman of the Natal branch of the society, visited ravines in the Malonjeni area, where many relics were found.

Mr. Bowden said the paintings were of a rhinoceros hunt, with one of the hunters in the act of being tossed.

"There are two sets of paintings on two different shelter faces, and others near the St. Augustine's Mission across the Buffalo River," he added.

Vivien Leigh Again Has Role Of Southern Belle

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What do you suppose happened to Scarlett O'Hara after Rhett Butler walked out on her?

"I think she probably became a much better woman," suggests Vivien Leigh, who played the role in Hollywood's most successful movie. "But I don't think she ever got Rhett Butler back."

Miss Leigh, like the late Margaret Mitchell, author of the book, has been asked such questions by fans ever since "Gone With the Wind" came out. I got her to reminisce about the famous role over lunch in her dressing room.

SOUTHERN BELLE AGAIN

The actress was dressed in the costume of a southern belle, but this time a more modern one—Blanche Dubois in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"It's hard to remember a role of 10 years ago when you're so wrapped up in one you're doing now," she said. "I wanted to play Scarlett since the first time I read the book. That was in London when I was appearing in an unsuccessful play. . . . But in 1938 I came to America. It was only to be a two-week visit. They had already started "Gone With the Wind," shooting the fire scenes with doubles for Scarlett in various sizes, since they didn't know who would play her. Myron Selznick took me out on the set and introduced me to his brother, David. He asked if I would like to take a test."

SURPRISE SELECTION

She made tests of various scenes from the book and on Christmas Day was told she had won the role. The selection was a surprise to most people and drew some complaints.

"But not from southerners," Miss Leigh declared. "The only complaints, strangely enough, were from people in England. I had always played sweet girls until then, and they didn't think I could play Scarlett."

Miss Leigh has seen the picture three and a half times. Although she considers it her best film role, she doesn't like to look at it.

"I don't like to see myself on the screen," she remarked. "I keep realizing how much better I could have done."

Goldwyn Plans F.D.R. Trilogy; Seeks Mrs. Roosevelt's O.K.

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Exclusively Yours:

Sam Goldwyn's representatives will meet with Eleanor Roosevelt about a trilogy on the life of F.D.R. The first is "Young Roosevelt," and takes him through his years as Navy Secretary and up to the time when he was stricken with paralysis.

Metro will film "Montes the Matador" in Spain. For Ava Gardner and her sonnet-scribbling bullfighter?

Don't look for M-G-M to toss Deborah Kerr and Sarah Churchill in the same picture. Sonja Henie could skate for the rest of her life on the ice generated when the two British dolls meet. The feud started when Sarah's hubby, Anthony Beauchamp, refused to photograph Deborah for a photo magazine because her political sympathies are with England's Labor Party.

It's hush/hush at the moment, but indie producer Jack Schwartz is beating every studio to the war headline picture with "Korean Patrol," which Eagle Lion will release.

Producer Howard Welsh is trying to buy the film rights to "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" for Ginger Rogers. . . . U.I.'s candidate for Oscar honors will be Jimmy Stewart's "Harvey," slated for December release. There will be no publicity drum-beating, however, on the theory that films touted for Academy Award glory rarely make money at the box office.

J. Scott Smart, who's expected to be a new star when "The Fat Man" hits movie houses, won't be playing Captain Andy in M-G-M's "Showboat." His radio show rules the role out for him.

Gloria Swanson is still gulping. A Hollywood radio commentator introduced her as the actress who makes film history with her portrayal of Nora Prentiss in "Sunset Boulevard." She plays Norma Desmond.

Paramount has the inside track on "South Pacific," with Rodgers and Hammerstein as a Bing Crosby-Betty Hutton co-starrer. The agreement would call for R. and H. to come out to Hollywood to produce.

Tennessee Williams' new book is titled "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone." Other day a ish-dah cutie rushed into a Beverly Hills bookstore and asked for a copy of "The Spring of Ruth Roman."

Brig. Plow Takes Eastern Command

HALIFAX (CP)—Maj.-Gen. H. W. Foster, 48, relinquished command of the eastern army command at the week-end to Brig. E. C. Plow, 45, one of Canada's top artillery officers.

Closing a brilliant career of 28 years' service, Gen. Foster soon will take up his new appointment as chief administrator of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

Zoo Gorilla Escapes; Snake Scares Him Back Into His Cage

CHICAGO (AP) — Bushman, Chicago's famous gorilla, escaped from his cage at the Lincoln Park Zoo Sunday, but keepers prevented him from gaining access to the park grounds.

For more than two hours, the huge, fierce-visaged, 550-pound ape roamed through the big monkey house while keepers sought to coax him back into his cage. They finally succeeded, with the aid of a two-foot garter snake.

How the gorilla got out of his cage has not been determined. By means of a long pole, the

Canada Planes Carrying Arms, Men To Japan

OTTAWA (CP)—The R.C.A.F. now has 12 planes operating on the Korean airlift from Tacoma, Wash., to Tokyo and has made 50 round trips carrying troops and arms to Japan for Korean operations.

This first disclosure that Canadian planes have been carrying arms as well as troops to Japan came from Wing Commander C. H. Mussels, commander of 426 Squadron, which is engaged in the operation. Wing Commander Mussels is in Ottawa for conferences with senior officers of air transport command.

The squadron commander, who himself is engaged in the airlift, said that in the 50 round trips made so far, the Canadian transports have carried 1,700 troops to Japan and rockets and other arms were included in the plane cargoes.

Canada sent six of the R.C.A.F.'s big four-engine North Star transports into the airlift late in July, complete with ground crews to keep them operating. The number has gradually been built up until the squadron now has a dozen planes in the operation.

Ottawa, Ontario—Special Projects Branch, Department of Resources and Development, Room 2134, No. 3 Temporary Building.

Montreal, Quebec—Office of the Montreal Engineering Company Limited, 244 St. James Street West.

Plans, specifications and other documents can be obtained from the above offices on the deposit of the sum of twenty-five ($25.00) dollars in the form of certified bank cheque payable to the Northwest Territories Power Commission. The deposit will be released on return of the plans and specifications within a month from the date tenders are closed. If not returned within that period, the deposit will be forfeited.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on forms supplied by the Commission, and in accordance with conditions set forth therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque on a chartered bank of Canada, payable to the order of the Northwest Territories Power Commission, equal to five (5) per cent of the amount of the tender, based on the estimated quantities; or in lieu of a certified cheque, bearer bonds of the Dominion of Canada or of the Canadian National Railways Company, and its constituent companies, unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the Dominion of Canada, or the aforementioned bonds and a certified cheque required to make up an odd amount.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
J. M. WARDLE,
Chairman,
Northwest Territories Power Commission,
Ottawa, Ontario, September 28th, 1950.

100,000 Attend
London Mass

LONDON (CP)—Nearly 100,000 British Roman Catholics heard the broadcast voice of the Pope at a solemn pontifical mass in Wembley Stadium Sunday.

The mass, marking the centenary of the restoration of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Britain, was the largest gathering of Roman Catholics in Britain's history.

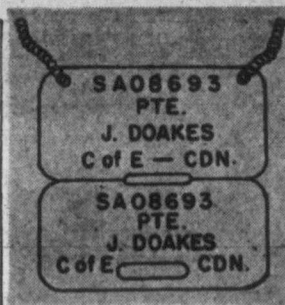

Six scarlet-robed cardinals, including James Cardinal McGaughan of Toronto, 12 archbishops and 46 bishops grouped around the altar, white and gold altar in the centre of the stadium.

Loudspeakers carried the voice of the Pope, broadcast from the Vatican, to the stadium thousands.

B.C. Girl Gets Degree

A British Columbian, Pauline Capelle, of Chilliwack, received her master's degree at the University of Chicago convocation.

Miss Capelle was one of 14 Canadian residents among the 498 students who graduated and the only resident from B.C. in the class.

New 'Dog Tag'

Identity tag to be worn by members of Canada's special force, replacing old fibre "dog tag," is of metal with beaded metal chain. Tag will show regimental number, rank, name, initials, religion and nationality, with blood grouping on reverse side.—(CP Photo)

Ceylon Pay Demands

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuter)—Tea and rubber estate workers here have decided to call a general strike Oct. 12 in support of their demand for a basic wage increase. Tea and rubber boards will meet shortly to consider the workers' demands.

Mission To Seek Bigger Grain Sales

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe has dispatched a three-man commission to Europe to try to boost Canadian sales of grain to that market.

"The mission will call on the grain trade, millers and government authorities with a view to facilitating the trade in Canadian wheat, grain and flour in that area," Mr. Howe said in a statement.

The mission is traveling by ship. It will stop off in London before proceeding to west European points. Heading the mission is Dr. C. F. Wilson, director of the department's grain and wheat division; R. W. Miller, member of the board of grain commissioners, and J. D. Lawrie, executive assistant to the Canadian wheat board.
